Casino board presents development ideas

The tribal gaming board and staff gave Tribal Council a report on three proposed development and improvement projects.

One of the ideas is to expand Indian Head Casino with an entertainment and Bingo hall. The addition would be to the side of the building where the security desk is currently located.

The addition would be from 15,000 to 20,000 square feet. The addition would be fairly easy to accomplish, as the utility hook-ups are in place for expansion, said Harold Baugus, Indian Head general manager.

The addition would cost about $4.5 million, and would be a great improvement to the casino, Baugus said

Bingo would be a popular added attraction, and the casino could host bigger name entertainers yearround, he said. The new room could be used for a variety other uses as well.

Gaming enterprises have to see improvements to continue attracting customers, Baugus said. "We've done well over the last year, but at some point we'll level out." The casino, he said, "has to be continuously enhanced."

The gaming board and staff have been studying this idea for several months, and recommended approval, said board chair Jason Smith.

The entertainment-Bingo hall expansion would give a good return on the investment, especially after year five, when the loan is paid off, according to the market research.

The gaming board also presented a proposal to develop a truck stop/ convenience store at the tribal property located at the Madras industrial park. This 10-acre site is currently not being used for any productive purpose.

The proposed development would also include a restaurant. Other tribes operate these kinds of businesses, and have seen success.

The market research for a truck stop-convenience store shows great potential for a profitable enterprise, Baugus said. There would be revenue to the tribes, plus about 60 new jobs for tribal members.

There are about 1,000 people who travel through the Madras industrial park five days a week. This customer base would be in addition to the thousands of vehicles that pass by the site on Highway 26.

The idea is locate class II gaming machines from Kah-Nee-Ta at the truck stop.

The third proposal by the board is to invest in renovations at Kah-Nee-Ta, which has not seen upgrades in 12 years.

The improvements are needed to make the resort competitive with other resorts in Central Oregon.

Pageant on Dec. 30

The Miss Warm Springs Pageant is coming up on the evening of Tuesday, Dec. 30. The Pageant is held at the Agency Longhouse.

The Tribal Council staff organize the Miss Warm Springs Pageant. If you have questions, please call Minnie Yahtin or Emily Yazzie at 541-553-3257.

The Miss Warm Springs contestants are judged on their knowledge of the Confederated Tribes and the reservation; and knowledge of traditional foods, ceremonies, clothing, crafts and social activities.

The judges also look for poise, personality and beauty, speaking ability and appearance. Contestants are asked to perform two tribal dances. They are asked to type essays on "Why I want to be Miss Warm Springs," and "What will be my civic project for the community during my reign?"

A table will be available at the pageant to showcase personal talents, academic and sports achievements, as well as traditional.

Simnasho to ring in New Year

The Simnasho New Year's Eve Celebration and Powwow will start with potluck at 6 p.m. on Wednesday, Dec. 31.

Washat starts at 7 and traditional powwow, social dancing and games start at 7:30.

Specials are Mother and Baby in Baby Board Recognition, Men's Round Bustle, and Musical Bench Championship of the World. The Clown Dance contest is at 11 p.m. Cash prize for first, second and third. Midnight: time to welcome the New Year with song and lay new footprints around the longhouse.

Title VII report looks at district performance

The Jefferson County School District 509-J in December released an evaluation report of the district Title VII Indian Education Program.

The report evaluates some of the district goals regarding the 975 Native American students in the district schools.

The goal of reducing the absentee rate has not been met during the 2013-14 school year, according to the report.

The overall absenteeism rate for Native American students in grades 7-12 increased from 12.4 percent Native American in 2013 for grades to 14.4 percent in 2013-14. The rate refers to the percentage of school days missed.

The long-term trend is toward a lower drop-out rate among the Native American students.

The report looks at how Native American students in the school district are doing in areas of reading and mathematics.

Aviation Administration, approving the reservation as a test-site for unmanned aerial vehicles. Kah-Nee-Ta wrapped up a $1.5 million repair project, necessary due to a kitchen fire last year.

The big development in 2014, though, was the opening of the Warm Springs k-9 Eagle Academy.

This was the culmination of a dream that many residents have had for the past few decades.

Tribal members in 2013 approved a referendum allowing the Confederated Tribes to fund half of the $20 million project, with the school district funding the other half.

The construction took about a year to complete, and the academy opened in time for the start of the 2014-15 school year.

There are about 650 students at the Eagle Academy. Some details are still being worked out, especially the one-mile radius rule, requiring students within that area to walk to school, even though there are no sidewalks along the route.

But the new school is a welcome addition to the community. The academy features the latest computer technology, and dedicated teachers and staff.

Great coffee and more at Giddy Up Go

Shawna Jackson has launched a new local business venture, the Giddy Up Go Espresso drive-up coffee shop. She is serving all kinds of coffees, plus breakfast and other food items.

Shawna bought the driveup shop in October. "I jumped in with both feet, and it's been fun," she was saying the other day.

Shawna had some previous business experience, selling beadwork, beads and Pendleton purses. This was in addition to her work as a foster care certifier with Children and Family Services.

The coffee business, though, was something new. "The day after I bought the shop," she was saying, "I went to a Coffee Fest in Portland."

Soon, she learned the finer points of making gourmet coffees. The next step was to think of a name for her business.

"That took about three weeks," she said. "I wanted

Shawna estimates that about 20 percent of her customers are truckers and others travelling on the highway, and the rest are local people.

Giddy Up Go has many different kinds of coffeesbreve, latte, mocha, Americano, etc.--and many flavors, listed alphabetically on the menu, from almond to white chocolate.

You can order a smoothie, choosing from a variety of flavors, from banana to wildberry.

There are kids drinks, with flavors like cookies and cream, and cotton candy. Other menu items are muffin tops, scones and donut holes. Also for breakfast there are biscuits and gravy, breakfast sandwiches, breakfast burritos, and Umpqua oatmeal.

Giddy Up Go Espresso is open Monday through Friday, 6:30 a.m. to 3 p.m., Saturday 8 a.m. to 12 p.m. Closed on Sundays. You can reach Giddy Up Go Espresso at 541-460-1861.

Letters to the editor

Generous donations most greatly appreciated

By Alyssa Macy

The KWSO and Spilyay Tymoo staff would like to extend our deepest gratitude to the community for the incredible generosity in support of the KWSO/Spilyay Tymoo Toy and Food Drive.

We were excited to Spilyay work with Speaks Early Childhood Education and the Head Start programs, as well as the Madras office of the Department of Human Services, to ensure that our children have a bright holiday.

In a short amount of time, we gathered an incredible amount of toys and food.

We've been busy sorting, wrapping presents and arranging delivery and pickup.

We know that when many children wake up on Christmas morning, they will be recipients of your kind gestures.

Thank you to everyone who donated, wrapped presents, delivered bags and shared our message. Our collective efforts are a strong display of what can be accomplished when we work together.

The holiday season is about presence. No material gift can take the place of time spent together, laughter, and love. Merry Christmas to you all!

Human Resources

The Comp and Benefits Fair was a huge success, with the best turn-out and participation in many years.

It was a tremendous success because we all worked together. The general managers, directors, KWSO, Jake Suppah and the S-T staff, our esteemed Tribal Council and of course my wonderful staff—made it a big success.

Message from the HR Director

It's hard to believe it has been four months since I answered the call from Jake Suppah, our S/T asking me to serve the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs. He did not mince words, he wanted HR to step up and serve employees in the best way possible, so we had our work cut out for us.

Time has flown by very quickly but I am delighted to see how wonderfully our HR team has flourished, and how motivated HR staff is to providing optimal customer service to all of our employees.

We are also collaborating with our colleagues in CTWS Enterprises and finding that working together helps the entire community.

The dedication and enthusiasm of our HR staff keeps me motivated each and every day to bring my very best to the Warm Springs community, and I hope you have experienced the positive changes we are trying to implement.

We have big plans in the works for 2015 and will keep you apprised of the many proactive initiatives we have in place to better serve you in 2015 their hunting results for 2014. Please completely fill out the right portion of your tag, even if you did not hunt, and return it to the Natural Resources office.

There is a green drop box at Macy's by the managers office where hunters may also return hunting results.

Please make sure to provide all requested information before turning in your tags.

Thank you, Happy Holidays!

Andrea Karoglanian, wildlife biologist, Confederated Tribes Natural Resources

Elk season

During this last early November it appeared like it was going to be a hard winter, an early two-day blast of arctic wind and snow, but it warmed up and thawed and melted with warm rain. Most elk stayed up in the high terrain, as there was not enough winter snow at that time to push elk to the lower elevations.

This last November we got an extra short elk hunting season.

Elk need grass and forbs and browse, and the best places to find that are in the habitat that has burned in recent years.

Some things have turned around as there were numerous high country wildfires on the Rez. The good side: there is good forage on the fringes of the old burns, also now days there is less competition for the grasses, since nearly half-2,800-of the 6,000 of the tribes' wild horse resource has been rounded up in the last two years, and taken out to an unknown fate.

The hunting units surrounding the Rez hold thousands of elk. Those east of the Cascades number about 65,000 elk. Populations are stable to increasing and are spread throughout the Cascades, in the vast high elk country of the Rez. Warm Springs NR and the state ODFW on aircraft counted only "82" elk on the Rez.

Best Wishes during this holiday season, from Warm Springs artist Travis Bobb.

What to know when applying for business loans

By Bruce Engle

Loan officer W.S. Credit Enterprise

Sometimes, addition problems can be easily solvedby subtracting.

Why am I talking about this during Christmas vacation? I am trying to find ways to help more of our kids enjoy and become better at math.

This would be my Christmas present for them. Parents, you can help.

Many fourth graders can learn this method and some third graders can handle it.

Start them off easy. You may be surprised how quickly they can pick it up.

Show them how to add 17 + 37 by rounding the numbers to 20 plus 40 equals 60 and subtracting 6. That would be subtracting 17 from 20 equals 3 and 37 from 40 equals another 3. Then you subtract that 6 from 60 for the answer of 54.

The next problems might be something like 18 + 57 or 25 + 47. The answer to the first would be 20 + 60 equals 80 and then 80 minus 5 equals 75. The second calculation would be 80 minus 8 equals 72.

Then, make it a bit more challenging by having them add 17 + 37 + 56. Here are two ways to do the problem.

One thought process might be 20 (minus 3) plus 40 (minus another 3) equals 60 minus 6. Then, add another 60 (with a minus 4) to equal 120 minus 3+3+4 to have an answer of 110.

Or, how about thinking 17 + 37 equals 54 and that 54 plus 56 equals 110. That last calculation is 50 + 50 equals 100 and then you add 6 + 4to make the answer 110.

Thinking and working from left to right makes it easy.

A next step might be to work with larger numbers. For example, add 396 plus 487 and then plus 563.

Here is one way:

· Round the numbers up to 400, 500 and 600; and, at the same time, keep track of the minuses. That's the key.

• Subtract 4 + 13 + 37. That's 54. The 4 is the difference between 396 and 400. The 13 is the difference between 487 and 500, and the 37 is the difference between 563 and 600.

The answer is 1500 minus 54 = 1446.

In your head you might think something like this: 400 minus 4 plus 500 minus 13 equals 900 minus 17, and finally 900 minus 17 + 600 minus 37 equals 1500 minus 54 which still equals 1446.

You can make it even more fun if there are some low numbers that you can round down and add back to make it work.

An example would be to add 214 to the previous answer by rounding it down to 200 + 1446 to equal 1646 and adding 14 to 1646 to make 1660.

Have fun and have a Merry Christmas!

Doctor's helpful notes on good eyesight

by Dr. Lynette Dziuk Warm Springs Health & Wellness Optometry Department

What does my glasses prescription mean?

A refractive error is when the eye doesn't bend light correctly, resulting in a blurred image.

Nearsightedness, or myopia, is when an object that is close to you is seen clearly but distance ones are blurry.

Farsightedness, or hyperopia, is when distant objects are seen clearly but near objects appear blurry.

Astigmatism is when the cornea is curved more in one direction than the other, resulting in blurry vision.

Astigmatism often occurs with farsightedness or nearsightedness.

Presbyopia is a normal aging process of the lens of the eye. When this occurs, you have difficulty focusing at close ranges and typically occur after the age of 40.

What are signs that my child may need glasses?

If your child is struggling at school, he or she may have an undiagnosed vision problem.

Often, when a child is unable to see the board clearly or cannot focus on work at their desk, the child may become frustrated.

Although screenings are done at school, your child may pass the requirements for that screening.

If you notice any of the following signs, you should schedule a full eye exam:

Squinting, tilting or turning the head, sitting close to the television, losing place or using their finger while reading, covering one eye to read or watch TV, excessive tearing, rubbing eyes, light sensitivity, or frequent headaches.

These are frequent signs noted with vision problems.

Why does my child have one lens thicker than the other?

Some children have a significant difference in prescription in each eye, and thus need different lens powers for each eye.

The importance of wearing their glasses all the time is to avoid developing amblyopia or lazy eye.

If untreated, amblyopia can cause decreased visual potential in one or both eyes.

One main point to remember is that your child will not have exactly the same prescription as you, so if you look through their glasses and feel it is too strong, it is that the prescription is not correct for you but is for your child.

Penney to manage CRITFC Fishery Science Department

Dr. Zachary L. Penney will be the new the Fishery Science Department manager for the Columbia River Inter-Tribal Fish Commission.

He will begin his new job on March 2.

Dr. Penney will manage CRITFC's largest department, consisting of 45 scientists and support staff.

The department main office is in Portland; with the Hagerman Genetics Lab in Idaho, and a research cooperative with the University of Idaho in Moscow.

The Fishery Science Department is tasked with increasing the scientific knowledge about Columbia Basin fish and the habitats upon which those fish rely.

The department conducts valuable research that informs tribal, state and federal management agencies.

Penney will be responsible

Dr. Zachary Penney

"Growing up, my parents and elders instilled in me the importance of fishing and education," said Dr. Penney.

"I'm excited to bring these passions to benefit the Columbia River Treaty Tribes, and culturally-significant species like salmon and lamprey.

"Tribal culture tells us why salmon are important, and science can tell us how to best help them. As we further the scientific understanding of fish and the habitats in which they live, we can improve the recovery efforts of Columbia Basin salmon."

by Jeremy FiveCrows CRITEC

The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration Fisheries is trying to find out just how many adult salmon are being lost between the mouth of the Columbia River and Bonneville Dam.

The number that NOAA Fisheries came up with is quite alarming.

The fish loss research began in 2010, and shows a steady increase in fish deaths in that stretch.

Adjusted for harvest and other salmon impacts, the 2014 average spring chinook salmon survival was just 55 percent, down from 69 percent in 2013 and 82 percent in 2012.

If the 2014 estimate is representative of the overall run, this means approximately 45 percent of the 2014 spring between Astoria and Bonneville Dam.

Sea lions crowd a walkway at a mooring basin in Astoria.

The Columbia River Inter-Tribal Fish Commission and chinook run died somewhere other agencies are trying to then go to breeding grounds fill in this gap in the research. They hope to determine just how much of the loss being seen is due to sea lions and seals.

the river between March and May. Most of the sea lions off southern California in the summer. About 68 percent of the fish the researchers tagged and sampled near Astoria were destined for the river and tributaries above Bonneville based on genetic testing. Survival varies over the course of the run, said Dr. Michelle Wargo-Rub, of the Seattle-based Northwest Fisheries Science Center.

for increasing the visibility of tribal scientific accomplishments; and planning, implementing, and improving technical projects and programs throughout the Columbia River Basin.

Dr. Penney has a Ph.D. in Natural Resources from the University of Idaho, and an extensive background in fisheries management and policy.

His experience includes work with tribal agencies, federal agencies, and academia.

For the past year, Penney has been serving as a NOAA Sea Grant Knauss Fellow in the office of Representative Huffman (Calif.) in the House of Representatives in Washington D.C.

Paul Lumley, CRITFC executive director, commented on Dr. Penney's hiring:

"His energy and passion for fisheries will be a great asset in the tribes' efforts to put fish back in the rivers and restore the watersheds where fish live."

In addition to his Ph.D., Penney has a Master's of Science in Earth and Ocean Sciences from the University of Victoria and a Bachelor of Science in Aquatic Resources from Sheldon Jackson College.

Right now, the research can't tell how much of this fish loss is due to sea lions and seals.

The project lead researcher reported, though, that fish mortality and the number of sea lions in the estuary have increased dramatically in recent years.

This coincides with reports from tribal fishers, who have seen evidence of sea lion and seal predation on damaged fish in their nets.

One current CRITFC research project is counting sea lions and seals along the entire lower river, not just at Bonneville Dam.

The fish loss research focuses on spring chinook, because that is the time of year when the sea lion population is largest in the river.

The sea lions follow the spring chinook run coming up

It appears that a higher percentage of fish in the early part of the run die before take longer to reach the dam, which exposes them to sea lions and seals for a longer time, she said.

CRITFC has been working with the states of Oregon and Washington, the Army Corps of Engineers, and the U.S. Department of Agriculture to haze California and Steller sea lions below Bonneville dam to hopefully change their behavior.

The CRITFC hazing crew uses cracker shells, seal bombs, and boat chases.

2014 ~ A Year in Review

(The following is a look back at some of the memorable news events from the latter half of the year on the reservation.)

June

Warm Springs tribal members gathered at Willamette Falls for a blessing ceremony for the lamprey. The Branch of Natural Resources, the Culture and Heritage Department and Committee, and Tribal Council were on hand for the blessing

The Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs hosted the Forty-Fifth Annual Pi-Ume-Sha Treaty Days in June, commemorating the signing of the Treaty of 1855.

The Warm Springs Canoe Family, N'chi Wanapum, officially partnered with the Nisqually Indian Tribe for Canoe Journey 2014.

Both tribes will travel on the Journey alongside each other, sharing pullers, cooks, drivers, vehicles, sup-port boats, food and fuel.

Tribal Council directed to the Fish and Wildlife Committee to develop an off-reservation elk hunting season. Councilman Carlos Smith said the off-reservation elk season is needed to relieve some of the hunting pressure on-reservation.

For the past two years the tribes have conducted off-reservation seasons for deer, during the month of October. Council agreed to adopt a similar program this year for elk.

Natural Resources conducted an elk survey on the reservation in December, but the results were inconclusive. Wildlife biologist Andrea Karoglanian said the December survey found only 82 elk, not enough to make a population projection.

Advocates of the motorsports project were focusing on getting out the vote. The question is set for a referendum vote in July. The absentee ballots went out in the mail this month.

Warm Springs Ventures and sup-

Shoni Schimmel lived up to her nickname in her first WNBA All-Star Game. Showtime Schimmel won the Most Valuable Player award in the wild All-Star game last Saturday.

The Warm Springs Canoe Family made an historic journey this summer. The N'chi Wanapum family traveled to Bella Bella, British Columbia.

The Paddle to Bella Bella was the Fifth Annual, and longest of the Canoe Journeys for the Warm Springs family.

"It's a great learning experience," Jazmine Ike Lopez was saying recently. "You learn the old ways of your own tribe, and the ways of other tribes. You learn to work together as a family and a community."

The Warm Springs Canoe Family arrives at Bella Bella in July.

August

The Confederated Tribes and school district 509-J held the dedication and opening of the Warm Springs K-8 Eagle Academy. "This is the culmination of a dream that began nearly half a century ago," said Austin Greene Jr., Tribal Council chairman.

With the opening of the new school, the tribes and school district are now in a unique partnership in the nation, Chairman Greene said. Together, the tribes and district planned for, funded and built the k-8 academy.

More than anything, he said, the school is dedicated to the young people of the tribes.

Middle school students will no longer have the long bus rides every school day. And the elementary school students now have a modern building in a better location. There will be about 650 students at the school when it opens in september.

Meanwhile, Madras High School and the school district 509-J hosted the grand opening of the new football stadium and track facilities. The new stadium-athletic complex is a large part of the school district improvement package that voters approved in 2012. The Warm Springs Academy, and the MHS performing arts center are also large parts of the overall district improvements. The performing arts center will have seating for up to 600 people when it opens soon. pursuant to the June, 1855 Treaty. Tribal members this year need just the tribal tags, plus tribal identification, to hunt on the ceded lands.

Jim Warne was in Warm Springs this month. Warne played for the 1987 Rose Bowl-winning Arizona State Sun Devils. He was offensive lineman in the NFL for the Cincinnati Bengals, Detroit Lions and the Tampa Bay Buccanets.

After his career in professional sports, he went in to acting, and got his Masters degree in Rehabilitation Counseling.

Warne was in Warm Springs working with Warm Springs Vocational Rehabilitation, and talking with young people about living a healthy and successful life.

The Museum at Warm Springs received word of a $140,000 grant from the Spirit Mountain Community Fund of the Confederated Tribes of Grand Ronde.

The money will be used for upgrades to mechanical systems at the museum, where the water system in particular needs attention. The current system is outdated and wasteful.

October

enue from the current year. This is a welcome change from recent years of budget reductions.

For the 2015 budget, Tribal Council is proposing to transfer $450,000 to the senior pension fund, and $450,000 to the revenue reserve fund.

Tribal Range and Agriculture has been working to reduce the environmental damage caused by the unclaimed horse population on the reservation. Range and Ag has rounded up about 1,300 horses this year, and is going for 1,500 to 1,600 by the end of the year, said Jason Smith, Range and Ag manager.

The Warm Springs unmanned aerial vehicles testing program is showing real potential for revenue and jobs on the reservation.

Three new jobs could be open within a few months, said Don Sampson, interim chief executive officer of Warm Springs Ventures.

These initial jobs are possible because the Oregon Infrastructure Finance Authority is providing funding for development of UAV testing in the state.

November

ter tower that serves the k-8 Academy and Greeley Heights neighborhood.

TIKA helps projects in many countries, often helping with projects that have to do with water.

Warm Springs Managed Care and the Indian Health Services clinic reported significant cost savings over the past year.

This happened because many tribal members have signed up for health care coverage. Having this coverage gives the individual more choices in health care services, and also provides budget savings to Managed Care and IHS, as there are added billing options.

December

The need for greater Native cultural presence at Madras High School was a suggestion at the Jefferson County School District 509-J board meeting.

"Talking as a parent, the school doesn't reflect any Native American presence," said Warm Springs Academy teacher Gina Bluebird Stacona, whose daughter attends the high school. "I think that contributes to the dropout rate."

porters are making an added effort to encourage participation in this referendum, as the previous two failed for lack of voter participation.

July

Construction crews are moving tons of earth this month in the area of Potter's Ponds on Mill Creek.

This is a large-scale fisheries improvement project, similar to but bigger than the 2009 Shitike Creek improvement project.

The Bonneville Power Administration is funding much of the work, as a mitigation project, with oversight by the tribal Natural Resources Branch. Scott Turo, fisheries biologist, and Johnny Holliday, project coordinator, are on site daily.

In time, Mill Creek will provide suitable habitat for a variety of fish and wildlife species. Also in July:

Tens of thousands of acres burned on the reservation. Fires broke out on both sides of the reservation, at Shaniko and toward Mt. Jefferson. Elsewhere:

The Roots program is the new alternative education program serving the reservation students. The program is part of Madras High School, based in Warm Springs.

The Roots director is Dawn Smith, longtime educator and former principal of Warm Springs Elementary School. She is working with teacher Earl Simmons. He has taught on the reservation for the past several years, and is certified to teach agriculture at the high school level. The Confederated Tribes received a $1 million grant to upgrade the public safety radio network.

The project will improve the police and fire radio system on the reservation. The grant, from the Department of Homeland Security, will also provide for construction of a telecommunications tower on the Mutton Mountains area of the reservation.

This is part of Homeland Security's ongoing efforts to support state, local, tribal and territorial partners. The total amount awarded to the Confederated Tribes is $1,069,200, through the Tribal Homeland Security Grant Program.

This summer brought several weeks of very hot weather. It was in mid July, at the height of the heat wave, that the Warm Springs water treatment plant almost reached capacity. The plant was producing as much drinking water was possible—close to 4.3 million gallons a day. This was just barely enough to meet the demand.

September

Tribal Council adopted regulations for off-reservation hunting. Tribal Council has authorized offreservation hunting on lands ceded Tribal Council posted a proposed tribal budget for 2015. The posted budget projects an increase in rev-

DECEMBER 24, 2014

Tribal members from the Confederated Tribes (CTWS) of the Warm Springs Reservation of Oregon are initiating a proposal to amend the tribal government Constitution and By-Laws. The stated goal is to create an environment of unity, trust, and respect while electing leadership.

PRESS RELEASE

This initiative is by members that want change to how candidates are elected into Tribal Council. The group states, "We need a one person one vote process to select leadership that will provide for the needs of the membership and Confederated Tribes."

The initiators are exercising the Tribal Constitutional Bill of Rights: "may enjoy without hindrance, freedom to worship, speech, press and assembly." The group will request the federal Bureau of Indian Affairs hold a secretarial election for the proposed amendments. The proposal would amend the Constitution and By-Laws Tribal Council organization, qualifications, salaries, and meetings and procedures.

The group is following the CTWS Declaration of Sovereignty (6/25/92) that states,

"Ultimate sovereignty is vested in the people, who received that sovereignty in the form of laws given by the creator and the land itself. Our people have delegated only limited authority to the Tribal Council and reserved the rest of our national sovereignty to ourselves."

The amendment group believes passage will mean a more effective and efficiently operated government:

- Tribal Council elections will be secretatrial.
- The number of council members would change from 11 to 9.
- Elections would change to at-large voting (1 person-1 vote).

• Three members would rotate after the first three year term; followed by annual elections replacing the next three positions (due for election).

- There would be no lifetime terms.
- The Chiefs would run for Tribal Council if nominated.
- Voting age would change from 21 to 18.
- The council would receive a salary and serve only as elected officials.

• The Secretary-Treasurer and executive officers would be hired under the CTWS salary administration program following the tribal preference policy.

The group's spokesperson, Mike Clements states, "I believe these amendments will provide a modern method to nominate, consider and elect leadership. We believe this will bring growth, wellness and unity to the membership."

Good year for salmon, help needed for lamprey

CRITFC reflects on productive 2014

The year 2014 was a busy one for the Columbia River Inter-Tribal Fish Commission and and the member tribes. The work focused on salmon, lamprey, river health and treaty fishing.

The record numbers of salmon returning to the Columbia River system was another indicator that the efforts to reverse the salmon decline are paying off, benefitting the species, the ecosystem, and the Indian fishers and families that depend on this first food.

Cooperation was a common theme throughout the year as the tribes continued to strengthen partnerships with federal and state agencies and other organizations. Many of the actions the tribes have advocated decades for can only be accomplished by combining resources with other partners.

Climate change

Despite the year's successes, everything isn't rosy. The effects of unusual and shifting weather caused from climate change are beginning to be seen throughout the Columbia River Basin and all signs point to these effects only increasing.

No one is sure how great an impact this will have on the region and on salmon, but it is cause for concern for the tribes, and something that CRITFC will continue to dedicate time and attention to in the coming year.

Lamprey

Lamprey continue to struggle in a hydrosystem that was not designed for their needs and their dwindling numbers are evidence of this. In the past year, they have received more attention, and we hope that this translates into more action to protect this ancient fish that is important to the tribes and the ecosystem.

"The challenges are not small, but looking back, I am proud of what the tribes have been able to accomplish," said CRITFC executive director Paul Lumley. "I hold out hope that the same resilience, strength, traditional knowledge, and determination that brought us-and the salmon-back from the brink of extinction will carry us into the future, too.

The CRITFC-produced film The Lost Fish highlighted the importance of lamprey to the tribes and the tribal efforts to save them.

inclusion in the EcoFilm Festival in July. The screening concluded with Nez Perce elder Elmer Crow being posthumously awarded the Eco Hero award for his work on lamprey advocacy and restoration. The film was screened at a variety of other locations throughout the region and has been very well received.

Record salmon run

Thanks partly to intense tribal restoration efforts, the 2014 salmon run passed 2.5 million fish. This number includes chinook, sockeye, coho, and steelhead adults and jacks.

On September 7, the record for number of fish passing Bonneville Dam was broken when 67,024 fall chinook passed. On the very next day, the record was broken again when 67,521 passed.

The total chinook run for the year was 1,152,603 adults and 187,009 jacks. The sockeye run was the largest since fish counting began at Bonneville Dam in 1938. A total of 614,179 fish passed the dam on their way to spawn in British Columbia, north-central Washington, and Idaho.

Restoring fish passage

CRITFC coordinated the third Future of Our Salmon Conference, this one focusing on restoring fish to all their historical locations, including past dams that currently offer no fish passage.

A preliminary three-day technical workshop in Spokane for scientists, biologists, and other technical specialists concluded that reintroduction to blocked areas was possible given current technology and engineering capacity.

At the main conference in Portland, attended by over 300 people, the findings from the technical workshop were presented, along with cultural and tribal leader presentations and panels of tribal, federal, and state officials.

Record commercial fishery

The value of this year's tribal commercial fishery value was estimated to exceed $7 million. The strong fish run played a role, but the fishers were able to command premium prices due to the quality of the fish they are delivering, which is due to quality handling techniques that have become standard practice for the majority of tribal fishers.
