Telecom in third year of growth

The Warm Springs Telecom has seen great progress since beginning operation in early 2012. The Telecom is now serving about 80 percent of the residential market on the reservation.

The enterprise also has several hundred non-residential customers. These include Indian Head Casino, which was the Telecom's first customer; tribal administration and most other departments; Power and Water, Natural Resources, and some telecommunication aspects of the clinic.

The Telecom this week is establishing a new tower that will greatly enhance the broadband service at Kah-Nee-Ta. New towers are serving Simnasho, the Schoolie and Sidwalter Flat areas, and Seekseequa.

The primary focus is providing the best phone and high-speed Internet service to reservation customers, said Jose Mantanane, general manager.

There is potential for business growth off reservation, but that will happen after the reservation is fully covered, he said. "We're working to close the digital divide that exists in Indian country," he said.

Many rural reservations have not employees, and three working through the Workforce Education and Development Department.

K-8 Academy

Another recent development: The Telecom will provide broadband Internet service to the Warm Springs K-8 Academy. Telecom won this school district contract through the competitive bid process.

The Telecom is currently installing fiber-optic cable to the new school, from a connection point by the Utilities Department on East Tenino.

When finished, the K-8 school will have a high-speed connection to the 509-J schools in Madras. This will allow for distance learning, for example. If a specialty class is being taught only at Madras, the Warm Springs students can participate without having to commute. The connection will also allow access at the Warm Springs school to data bases at Madras, said Josh Richesin, operations manager and engineer.

The cable installation work is being done at no cost to the school. The goal is to provide the students at the Warm Springs Academy with the best quality service for a Twenty-First Century education, Mantanane said.

Saturday market starting

The first Warm Springs Outdoor Market of 2014 is scheduled for this Saturday, May 4, at the campus park.

The market this year is being organized by a group of volunteers who are forming a co-operative business. Members include Marge Kalama, Gerald Danzuka, Marcia Macy and Pinky Beamer, among others. The Warm Springs Community Action Team is helping with the market.

"We're so excited to get this grassroots effort off the ground, and thankful for those who completed our survey," said Marge Kalama. "The survey will guide us and confirm our goals."

The community action team was the organizer of the market last year, but has seen a staff reduction; so the co-op group is stepping up.

Vendors can set up for free. The co-op and community action team will provide the tables and tents for the vendors. Bring beadwork, roots, crafts and other items for sale.

"If folks want to bring yard-sale type items, that would be okay," said Chris Watson, of the community action team. The Txtaimat Pama Outdoor Market will be from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday.

Warriors Gathering at HeHe

Veterans and their family and friends met at the HeHe Longhouse for the Annual Veterans and Family Healing Circle.

Larson Kalama and family have organized this event for the several years now. Many kinds of healing practices—sweat lodge, talking circle, washing and healing touch, music and poetry among them—are used at the gathering.

The Healing Circle brings veterans and family from many areas to HeHe for the four-day gathering. They camp in tents and RVs at HeHe by the Warm Springs River.

The Healing Circle is an event of dedication: No fees are charged.

Volunteers give their time to cook and clean, and provide healing service.

Veterans of all ages, several of the Vietnam and the Gulf wars, attended this year.

Athletes Exhibit

From Jim Thorpe to the Schimmel sisters, Jacoby Ellsbury, Billy Mills and Louis Sockalexis, Native Americans have a long and storied history in sports. Stop by the Museum at Warm Springs to check out Winning Spirits: Native American Youth and Athletics. Museum curator Natalie Kirk once again did a great job with the changing exhibit. Winning Spirits is part of the museum's 2014 focus on youth and youth themes, leading up to the opening of the Warm Springs k-8 Academy. The main exhibit this year, opening in June, will be Celebrating Native American Youth, which will be on display from June through September.

Spring yard sale Saturday

The Community Center and Recreation Department will host the annual Spring Yard Sale this Saturday, May 3. Stop by the Community Center front lawn between the hours of 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Vendors, call to reserve your table, 541-553-3243. (Limited number of tables available.) Vendors, also bring your own chair.

Ministry giveaway at longhouse

A Ministry team will be in Warm Springs on Saturday, May 3, offering donations of clothing, food and household items. They will be at the Agency Longhouse starting between 10 and 11 a.m., and will stay until the items have been distributed. For information on this project call the Pastor at 503-269-9547.

Notice regarding Minors Trust Fund spring distribution. There will be a delay in the distribution, which was scheduled to happen before April 24. More time is needed to verify the amounts of the distributions; so there will be some delay. An effort is being made to have the distributions ready in May. For more information call Margaret Medina at 541-553-3252.

Letters to the editor

Honor Seniors

The Twenty-Fourth Annual Honor Seniors Day will commence on May 9 at the Agency Longhouse. The Honor Day is heralded as one of the first Honor Seniors days in the Pacific Northwest.

The idea originated with a small group of tribal elders who wanted an event especially for elders and locals who attend the day-long event. The Honor Day is a whole day of events dedicated to honor seniors.

The Honor Senior Day is a time to showcase the local area, such as the Museum at Warm Springs, Indian Head Casino, Kah-Nee-Ta Resort and Spa, and other local area of interest for the elders who will be in attendance.

The elders are given the opportunity to use their name tags from the Honor Day to gain free admission to the Museum at Warm Springs. A shuttle service is provided to all points of interest, as a courtesy during Honor Seniors Day.

The Honor Seniors Day Committee is requesting a financial or miscellaneous donation for prizes given throughout the event.

For additional information contact the Senior Department at 541-553-3313 or 553-3520. Or email:

Wilson.wewa@wstribes.org
Fay.hurtado@wstribes.org

The mailing address is Warm Springs Seniors Department, PO Box C, Warm Springs OR 97761.

Lodging is available at Kah-Nee-Ta Resort and Spa, 1-800-554-4786 or email: reservation@kahneeta.com

Thank you for your consideration. Sincerely,

Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs Senior Wellness Center staff.

Youth movement

Dear Youth Movement community leaders,

Thank you for your valuable time and leadership in the third annual Field Day. Your support and encouragement to keep Native American youth active has been instrumental in the mission of increasing athlete participation in the 2014 Youth Movement.

It is the hope of program-partners to gather your knowledge on the best way to measure the strengths and challenges of the Youth Movement Field Day. This information will be used to guide the program in the years to come.

As a former collegiate athlete, I have experienced the powerful influence sport plays in community connection and wellness. I am excited to volunteer with program-partners to provide assessment tools to measure program outcomes. I am seeking input on how best to capture some key concepts in our first year of assessment. Some questions for evaluation include:

How do you define success for the youth, and their community, participating in this event?

What has been most successful, as well as most challenging, for recruitment and retention of athletes?

How do you think the program can better support and include key partners in making the event successful?

Along with these initial questions, we are also interested in any other areas you would like to give feedback on. My personal deadline to gather community input is Friday May 2. If you have any questions, please feel free to contact me at 541-868-6554. Or:

bhinchcl@uoregon.edu
I appreciate your time and look forward to hearing from all of you,

Brittany Hinchcliffe

Native co-op

A cooperative business, or co-op, is a type of business comprised of members who both own the business and make use of the services provided by the co-op.

Membership in a co-op provides some sort of financial benefit to its user-owners.

In a co-op comprised of individual business people, like crafts-people, each user-owner earns more money by being a member of the co-op than they would on their own.

The co-op group here in Warm Springs is interested in forming a Native arts and crafts co-op that would operate a storefront and provide a space for local people to sell their work.

The storefront would provide co-op members several advantages. The co-op would provide a public space where community members could sell their products year round. Co-op members could also have the opportunity to interact with their customers and tell the story of their work with dedicated on-site studio space.

This co-op is still very early in the planning stage, so here is your opportunity to learn more and have input in the co-op development process.

Co-ops can be set up in many different ways depending on the needs of the co-op members.

If you would like to know more and want to be contacted about co-op developments in the future, please call 541-553-3148.

Chris Watson, Warm Springs Community Action Team.

Public lecture

The Phi Beta Kappa Alpha of Oregon Chapter is hosting the program American Indians in the American Popular Imagination this month at the University of Oregon.

This will be a free event. The featured speaker will be Phi Beta Kappa 2014 Visiting Scholar, Philip Deloria.

In this lecture he will examine the curious and painful dynamics surrounding Indian visibility in popular culture. The program is on Wednesday, May 14 at the University of Oregon Emu ballroom, starting at 7:30 p.m.

Deloria will discuss topics such as Metamora, Last of the Mohicans, Haiwatha, Cher, dreamcatchers, motorcycles, sports teams, George Catlin, Buffalo Bill, Avatar, The Lone Ranger, among others—paired with Indian invisibility in most social, economic, and political discussion.

Deloria combines the arguments of his books Playing Indian and Indians in Unex- pected Places to advance the case for Indian people's deep engagements with modernity over the last 120 years.

Philip Deloria is the Carroll Smith-Rosenberg Collegiate Professor at the University of Michigan, with a joint appointment in the departments of History and American Culture.

He has served as president of the American Studies Association, as a council member of the Organization of American Historians, and as a trustee of the Smithsonian's National Museum of the American Indian.

He is also the coeditor of The Blackwell Companion to American Indian History and C.G. Jung and the Sioux Tradition.

Buy Back under way

The Department of the Interior has sent purchase offers totalling more than $100 million to nearly 16,000 landowners with fractionated interests at the Pine Ridge Reservation.

These offers will provide landowners the opportunity to voluntarily sell their interests, which would be consolidated and held in trust for the Oglala Sioux Tribe of the Pine Ridge Reservation. Pine Ridge is among the most highly-fractionated locations in the United States; landowners with purchasable interests have been located in all 50 states.

The Buy-Back Program was created to implement the land consolidation component of the Cobell Settlement, which provided a $1.9 billion fund to purchase fractionated interests in trust or restricted land from willing sellers, at fair market value, within a 10-year period. Interested sellers will receive payments directly into their IIM accounts. Consolidated interests will be transferred to tribal governments for uses benefiting the tribes and their members.

Staff are ready to answer owner questions. Landowners can contact the Trust Beneficiary Call Center at 888-678-6836 with questions about their purchase offers. Or visit their local Office of the Special Trustee for American Indians or Bureau of Indian Affairs office. Or go to:

doi.gov/buybackprogram/landowners
Participation in the Buy-Back Program is voluntary and selling land does not jeopardize a landowner's ability to receive individual settlement payments from the Cobell Settlement. Cobell Settlement payments are being handled separately by the Garden City Group, 800-961-6109.

Tribes, lawmakers highlight importance of river treaty

The United States and Canada are preparing to negotiate the Columbia River Treaty. The current treaty has been in place since 1964.

The treaty tribes of the Columbia, including the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs, are encouraging President Obama to make the treaty negotiation a priority this year. The new treaty will become binding after 2024.

Regional entities—lead by the Bonneville Power Administration and the Corps of Engineers—made recommendations in December 2013, as to changes that should be considered in the treaty.

“The Pacific Northwest depends on a healthy Columbia River system to provide environmental sustainability, national energy independence, protection of public safety and infrastructure, and economic well-being,” the recommendation document begins.

“The Columbia River Treaty has provisions that should be improved to address this region's longterm ability to meet these objectives. Consequently, the region's sovereigns and stakeholders believe that modernization of the Treaty is in the best interest of the United

You can read the full recommendations at: crt2014-2024review.gov

Meanwhile last week, 26 lawmakers representing the states of Oregon, Washington, Montana and Idaho delivered a letter to President Obama urging him to make the treaty negotiation a priority this year.

In the letter, the lawmakers highlighted the importance of the treaty, and asked the administration to take direct action on the issue by mid-year 2014, as called for in regional recommendations.

“It is essential that the administration now advance this work through discussions with Canada to ensure that a post-2024 Treaty better reflects the interests of our constituents in the region and the United States as a whole,” the letter says.

“As you convene an Interagency Policy Committee on the recommendation, we draw your attention to the recommendation's clear call for a decision and action by the administration on this matter by mid-year.”

The states' congressional members in their letter also underscored the importance of the Obama Administration to be open and transparent in the treaty negotiations with Canada, and for the administration to consider input from Northwest lawmakers and regional stakeholders as the process moves forward.

“The Columbia River provides significant economic and cultural benefits to our region and how it is managed through the treaty will have major impacts into the future. Therefore, it is important that you remain in regular and close communication with the Pacific Northwest congressional delegation during the Interagency Policy Committee process and keep us apprised of potential negotiations with Canada.

“In addition, we encourage the administration to remain open to input from and engagement with concerned regional stakeholders, many of whom have valuable expertise in managing the Columbia River and played an integral role in developing the recommendation,” the letter says.

Paul Lumley, executive director of the Columbia tions: Dreams, Visions, Nature, and the Primitive by Vine Deloria Jr.

The upcoming lecture is sponsored by the College of Arts and Sciences, Department of English, Department of History, the University of Oregon libraries, Many Nations Longhouse, the Native American Studies Program, Oregon Humanities Center, Robert D. Clark Honors College, University Housing, Division of Undergraduate Studies, and Phi Beta Kappa.

Phi Beta Kappa was founded in 1776, and is the nation's oldest academic honor society, with half a million members across the country.

Community assessment on FASD

The Warm Springs Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Coalition is conducting a tribal community assessment.

Your input is extremely useful in shaping future services and programs relating to Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorder.

The Community Health Education Team is hoping to have responses by mid May.

For information on participating, contact Evelyn Aguilar, Community Health Education Team secretary, at 541-553-2211. Or email: evelyn.aguilar@wstribes.org

Assessment questions

The assessment asks a series of questions, starting with the individuals tribal affiliation. Other questions:

Are you the parent or caretaker of someone with a fetal alcohol spectrum disorder (FASD)?

Have you heard of fetal alcohol or fetal alcohol spectrum disorder?

What does it mean to you?

How serious is this problem with Tribal members?

What do you think could be done?

In general, what does our community feel about fetal alcohol spectrum disorders and its effect on past, present and future generations?

(Check as many statements as you feel apply)

Our community recognizes fetal alcohol spectrum disorders (FASD) as an issue.

Our community values identification of FASD.

Our community seeks diagnosis of FASD.

Our community is seeking education and intervention strategies.

Elders and families feel included in any identification and referral process.

In general, what are the special strengths and resources of our community that might be helpful with FASD?

For example: Traditional practices, tribal school, Tribal Council resolutions relating to alcohol use, FASD task force or coalition. Multidisciplinary provider teams including juvenile services, corrections, courts, mental health, education, social services and families; commitment to dealing with FASD issues

Are there specific problems with the assessment, identification and diagnosis of FASD being done in our community?

If you received any information about FASD, how was that provided? If you would like to join the coalition please contact the Community Health Education Team, 541-553-2211.

Heart Health luncheons

The Community Health Education Team offers Heart Health education on Thursdays through May.

The gatherings are from noon to 1 p.m. in the large conference room at the Family Resource Center. Lunch will be provided.

Space is limited to 20 people. For more information call Judy at 541-553-2211.

The course is a based on a 10-week curriculum, condensed in a booklet for easy reading from Honoring the Gift of Heart Health for American Indians.

Workshop for car shoppers

A free workshop in Warm Springs is coming, with the main topic being “Get the best car deal.”

The workshop will be held at the tribal Credit Enterprise at 6 p.m. on Tuesday, May 13. Presenter will be Tom Collier of Tom Collier Classic Motor Car Co.

“Know how to get the best car deal—before you start shopping. Save time and money, and walk away with a good deal. Buying a car is not something most of do every day. It can be intimidating, if you’re not armed with the facts—such as what the car is worth, what the dealer paid, and much you can afford.”

Attend this workshop and be informed.

For more information call 541-553-3201 to reserve your seat. Refreshments will be served. Also sponsored by Mid Oregon Credit Union.

Important gaming case at U.S. Supreme Court

The U.S. Supreme Court is taking a really long time with Michigan v. Bay Mills Indian Community, an Indian gaming case.

Oral arguments took place on December 2, 2013. Cases heard around the same time, and even more recently, have already been adjudicated; so the court has been taking a longer time than expected to release an opinion.

There is no explanation for the delay. But Richard Guest, an attorney with the Native American Rights Fund, said last month it could indicate that the justices are deeply divided on the matter.

The outcome will determine whether the state of Michigan can sue the Bay Mills Indian Community for operating an off-reservation casino on land that has not been placed in trust or restricted status.

Tribal advocates fear the court could significantly erode the doctrine of sovereign immunity.

Ways to recognize, treat osteoporosis

(The following information is provided by the Warm Springs Community Health Education Team. Call them at 541-553-2211.)

What is Osteoporosis?
Answer: A disease that weakens bones over time, resulting in thin bones and low bone density.

Osteoporosis is a disease in which bones become fragile and more likely to fracture.

Osteoporosis is the most common type of bone disease.

Bone is living tissue. Existing bone is constantly being replaced by new bone.

Osteoporosis occurs when the body fails to form enough new bone, when too much existing bone is reabsorbed by the body, or both.

Calcium is one of the important minerals needed for bones to form.

If you do not get enough calcium and vitamin D, or your body does not absorb enough calcium from your diet, your bones may become brittle and more likely to fracture.

A drop in estrogen in women at the time of menopause and a drop in testosterone in men is a leading cause of bone loss.

Symptoms

There are no signs in the early stages of Osteoporosis. Many times people will have a fracture before learning that they have the disease.

There can be a loss of height (as much as 6 inches) over time. A stooped posture or kyphosis (also called Dowagers hump) may develop.

One mineral density testing (most often with a DEXA Scan) measures your bone mineral density. Your health care provider uses this to test to:

- Diagnose bone loss and osteoporosis;
- Predict your risk of future bone fractures;

- See how well osteoporosis medicine is working.

Treatment for osteoporosis may involve:

- Lifestyle changes, such as diet and exercise.
- Taking calcium and vitamin D.
- Using medicines.

Schimmel goes eighth to Atlanta

Shoni Schimmel now plays for the Atlanta Dream of the WNBA.

She was taken with the eighth selection in the first round of the 2014 WNBA draft.

Shoni is the third Native American woman to be drafted in the WNBA. She is the highest drafted Native American woman in the history of the draft.

Shoni is a member of the Confederated Tribes of the Umatilla.

She has family and friends in Warm Springs. Some are already planning to watch her play in Seattle in August, when the Dream play the Storm.

During the 2013-14 season, Shoni performed her best in all statistical categories, out of her four year career at the University of Louisville. The overall performance was enough to make her a high first-round WNBA draft choice.

At the draft, WNBA president Laurel J. Richie presents Shoni with the Atlanta Dream jersey.

At Louisville Shoni led the Cardinals in scoring with 17.1 points per game, and she led the Cardinals in assists with 3.8 per game. She also became the second player in school history to score 2,000 career points.

Shoni currently ranks second on Louisville’s all-time scoring list with 2,143 points. Other career totals include a career 596 assists and pulled down 547 career rebounds.

Also this past season, Schimmel was named to the USBWA All-American team, and named a second team ESPNW All-American.

She was a WBCA All-Region I selection, named a first team All-American Athletic Conference, and earned all-tournament honors. She was also named a Naismith semi-finalist and named to the Wooden ballot.

Known mainly as a 3 point shooter, Schimmel also became a great distributor of the ball this season. She got her teammates involved, and that is what she will be expected to do at the next level.

Shoni said, “Its definitely a blessing to be able to be in the WNBA...I definitely think I can bring a little flavor to the league”

On draft evening, Shoni was supported by her parents, Rick and Ceci Schimmel and her sister Jude Schimmel, who will be a senior next fall for the Louisville Cardinals.

Fish conference looks at restoring passage

Salmon swimming above Grand Coulee Dam is either a dream or a memory, depending upon on your age.

A two-day conference in Portland last week brought together innovators, scientists, and government officials to explore the real possibilities of restoring salmon above previously impassable dams—something long dismissed as being technically impossible, politically unachievable, or both.

Grand Coulee Dam has blocked all fish passage into the Upper Columbia since it was completed in 1941.

The 2014 Future of Our Salmon Conference focused on restoring fish passage that would allow salmon, lamprey, sturgeon, bull trout, and other migratory and resident species to return to their historical range throughout the Columbia and Snake river systems.

Conference attendees delved into various case studies that have successfully developed fish passage projects throughout the Columbia River system; explored the economics of fish passage projects; and discussed engineering strategies and experimental designs and discuss the cultural and legal perspectives on fish passage to all historical locations.

Confederated Salish and Kootenai Tribes, Cowlitz Indian Tribe, Okanagan Nation Alliance, Upper Columbia United Tribes and Upper Snake River Tribes.

This international coalition included many tribes from areas where salmon can longer return due to dams that lack fish passage.

Leading up to the conference, a technical workshop was held in March to review recent advances in passage technology, identify passage obstacles, and explore viable fish passage solutions. The technical workshop presentations are available at bit.ly/FOOSTechnical.

The Future of Our Salmon Conference was sponsored by 29 different organizations and agencies including: Columbia Basin Trust, Okanagan Nation Alliance, Ktunaxa Nation Council, Secwepemc Nation, Pacific Salmon Foundation, Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife, US Fish and Wildlife Service, Northwest Power and Conservation

Council, Columbia Power Corporation, and the Center for Coastal Margin Observation and Prediction.

A first glance at Warm Springs K-8 Academy

Neda Wesley and great granddaughter Heaven Stwyer visit the new school. Stwyer will start as a first grader in September.

"I'm excited that the school will be bigger and that it will have provisions for handicapped students,"
— Neda Wesley who will have four grandchildren enrolled in the K-8 Academy in September

Stan Speaks, Northwest regional director and John Halliday, Warm Springs Agency superintendent help celebrate the new school on behalf of the U.S. Department of the Interior Bureau of Indian Affairs.

"It's going to be a nice education center for youngsters and a good place to get them started on the right track."
— John Halliday, superintendent, Warm Springs Agency

"I'm really excited about the school. The way it looks inside and how new it's going to be."
— Hazen Bruised Head, grade 4

"It's been a long haul so it's pretty exciting to see it."
— Brad Holliday, school board member

"I like the size of the classrooms and the ball windows and size of the gym."
— Paullee Greene, grade 2

"It's nice to see. I hope it will be very positive for students and the community."
— Sara Kollen, 4th grade teacher

Community open house welcomes all

Students, teachers, families and community members came out for a look at the new Warm Springs K-8 Academy during an open house event on April 11. Visitors of all ages gathered in the new gym and peeked through doors to take in views of the surrounding landscape through large classroom windows.

"I'm proud to be a part of this project to provide this beautiful school to our kids," said Darryl Smith, director of Human Resources and Operations for JCSD 509-J. "I can't believe we were standing here in the trees less than a year ago," he added with a gesture to the A-East wing that will house kindergarten through 2nd grade as well as Life Skills and Special Education students in the fall.

"It's going to be a drastic improvement," said Jeff Sanders, Sr. "It will be a new start and the kids can associate with it as their school." The school is scheduled to open in September of this year.

Former Warm Springs students help build new school

Relda Kalama is the mother of five sons and one daughter. Her children grew up on the Reservation and attended Warm Springs Elementary School. Today, three of her boys are working on the K-8 construction project to help create a new school for the next generation of children.

"I'm proud of them and I'm glad we are getting something good for the kids," said Kalama.

Her son, Fred Jack, has been employed by the construction project since it began.

"It was all trees when we started," said Jack who works in security for Kirby Nagelhout Construction.

Fred Jack and his mom Relda Kalama share a hug at the Warm Springs K-8 open house.

"This means progress for our community as we transition from a BIA school. There will be more space for growth for our children."
— Don Courtney, executive deputy director for the Bureau of Indian Affairs

Sammy Bruised Head works for Bend Commercial Glass and her children will be attending the new school in September.

"I love it. I think the kids are extremely lucky. My kids came today and they were so excited about the gym and the field."
— Sammy Bruised Head, parent and construction project team member

Teachers Taralee Suppah and Esther Kalama scope out one of the new classrooms to see how much space they will have.

"New location, new building, new ideas, new outlook. That's what I'm hoping for and what I plan to bring to the new school. I believe in honoring our culture and embracing education."
— Esther Kalama, 1st grade teacher

Don Courtney, executive deputy director for the Bureau of Indian Affairs, led visitors in prayer at the open house.

New reports show high disparity in mortality rates

Records show that Native American death rates were nearly 50 percent greater than rates among non-Hispanic whites during 1999-2009.

This rate was for both men and women combined.

The new findings were announced through a series of Center for Disease Control reports released online last week by the American Journal of Public Health.

The center's Division of Cancer Prevention and Control led the project, and collaborated with CDC's National Center for Health Statistics and other CDC researchers, the Indian Health Service, partners from tribal groups, universities, and state health departments. Key findings:

- Among Native American people, cancer is the leading cause of death followed by heart disease. Among other races, it is the opposite.
- Death rates from lung cancer have shown little improvement in Native American populations. Native people have the highest prevalence of tobacco use of any population in the United States.

- Deaths from injuries were higher among Native American people compared to non-Hispanic whites.
- Suicide rates were nearly 50 percent higher for Native American people compared to non-Hispanic whites, and more frequent among Native American males and persons younger than age 25.
- Death rates from motor vehicle crashes, poisoning, and falls were two times higher among Native American people than for non-Hispanic whites.
- Death rates were higher among Native American infants compared to non-Hispanic whites infants. Sudden infant death syndrome and unintentional injuries were more common. Native American infants were four times more likely to die from pneumonia and influenza.
- By region, the greatest death rates were in the Northern Plains and Southern Plains. The lowest death rates were in the East and the Southwest.

"The new detailed exami-

The report concludes that patterns of mortality are strongly influenced by the high incidence of diabetes, smoking prevalence, problem drinking, and health-harming social determinants.

nation of death records offers the most accurate and current information available on deaths among the American Indian and Alaska Native populations," said Dr. David Espey, acting director of CDC's Division of Cancer Prevention and Control.

"Now, we can better characterize and track the health status of these populations—a critical step to address health disparities."

Accurate reporting

Correct reporting of Native American death rates has been a persistent challenge for public health experts.

Previous studies showed that nearly 30 percent of people who identified themselves as Native American when living, are classified as another race at the time of death.

The new studies address race misclassification in two ways. First, the authors linked U.S. National Death Index records with IHS registration records to more accurately identify the race of Native American people who had died. Second, the authors focused their analyses on the IHS's Contract Health Service Delivery Area counties, where about 64 percent of Native American persons live. Fewer race misclassification errors occur in CHSDA data than in death records.

The authors reviewed trends from 1990 through 2009, and compared death rates between Native American people and non-Hispanic whites by geographic regions for a more recent time period (1999-2009).

Influencing factors

The report concludes that patterns of mortality are strongly influenced by the high incidence of diabetes, smoking prevalence, problem drinking, and health-harming social determinants.

Many of the observed excess deaths can be addressed through evidence-based public health interventions.

"The Indian Health Service is grateful for this important research and encouraged about its potential to help guide efforts to improve health and wellness among American Indians and Alaska Natives," said Dr. Yvette Roubideaux, acting IHS director.

"Having more accurate data along with our understanding of the contributing social factors can lead to more aggressive public health interventions that we know can make a difference."

Carbon sequestration moving forward

The first phase of the carbon sequestration study is complete. Natural Resources is preparing an update on the project for Tribal Council.

Phase 1 was the development of an inventory and modeling to determine the feasibility of carbon sequestration on the reservation. The next phase will be the design of a management plan for certain forest areas, said Bobby Brunoe, Natural Resources general manager.

The practice of “improved forest management” can result in carbon sequestration that can be marketed to large companies in California.

Other tribes, the Yurok and Hoopa, for instance, have recently entered the carbon sequestration market. Warm Springs Natural Resources began researching the subject in 2013, with encouragement from Tribal Council.

Carbon sequestration has the potential for new revenue to the tribes, said Brunoe.

Carbon sequestration is the process of capturing and storing atmospheric carbon dioxide, a greenhouse gas. In 2013 California implemented regulations limiting the amount of greenhouse gases that a company can emit during the year. There is flexibility in the regulation in that a company can exceed the cap limit by obtaining an allowance or an offset.

An offset means the company demonstrates that, through its initiative, an amount of carbon is being captured and stored, or sequestered, that otherwise would have gone into the atmosphere.

Root digging with Warm Springs Elementary

On April 18th, 2014 Warm Springs Elementary 4th graders took a trip to Webster flat to learn about the traditional foods and way of life their people have been living since time memorial. This trip is a part of the Agriculture in the Classroom (AIRC) sessions that teaches the Warm Springs youth about agriculture.

AIRC has been piloting a project that tailors its teaching to the Warm Springs community and their cultural way of life. The program has been successful brining in elders to talk about salmon and other parts of native agriculture.

THANK YOU! to departments and adults that made it possible

The Warm Springs OSU Extension office would like to thank the Utilities department for the donation of the porta-potties. WSE bus drivers, cafeteria staff for preparing the student lunches, Culture and Heritage Department, Myra, Suzie, Nola, Millie, George, and mosses for blessing the roots.

Adults that attended:

Deanie Smith	Taylor Dave	Cassie Katchia
Ashley Aguilar	Fabian Sutterlee Jr	Whitney Jackson
Bronte Caldera	Millie Colwash	Albert Charley
Triston Smith	Nola Queaphama	Charles Kalama
Carol Miller	Suzie Slockish	Rosanna Sanders
Tina Spino	Myra Orange	Kim Griffith
Candace M. Allen	George Aguilar Sr.	Sara Rogers
Tony Holliday	Danni Katchia

OSU Extension Saturday Garden Worskshops

What: Planting Day and Potluck Simnasho
When: Saturday, May 3, 2014 10:00am – 2:00pm
Description: Time to repair the tunnel and plant the Simnasho Community Garden! Join OSU Garden Coordinator, Yvonne Babb and members of the community to prepare the garden. This is your time to share in the vision and planting of the garden and how you can nurture it through the summer as a community. Yvonne will demonstrate how to prepare the soil, group your plants and plant them successfully.
Bring:
· Vegetable or herb seeds or starts
· Compostable items like food scraps, manure, straw, newspaper or yard clippings
· A potluck dish to share
· Water for a community lunch.
· Extra hoses will be needed.
· Wheelbarrow and or tools to help in the planting
Where: Simnasho Community Church and Garden behind it, Simnasho Community

What: Planting Day and Potluck Warm Springs
When: Saturday, May 31, 2014 10:00am – 2:00pm
Description: Time to plant the Warm Springs Community Garden and give back to the land. Join OSU Garden Coordinator, Yvonne Babb, Edmond Francis and members of the community to prepare the garden. Yvonne will demonstrate how to prepare the soil, group your plants and plant them successfully in your plot. After the demonstration everyone will be able to start planting their beds. If you don't have a bed, but want to help and plant the community section it will be a great contribution.
This community garden needs committed volunteers to help plant, weed, maintain and harvest the crops planted. Several areas may be sown with a cover crop to restore the nutrients in the soil which are removed from regular harvesting.
Bring:
· Vegetable or herb seeds or starts
· Compostable items like food scraps, manure, straw, newspaper or yard clippings
· Water for a community lunch.
· Learn to group your plants and design your plot with growing and transplanting tips to help them flourish.
· Wheelbarrow and or tools to help in the planting

There are SO Many Ways to Cook Veggies

Follow these easy steps to cook broccoli and cauliflower:

1. Wash under running water.
2. Cut into same-size pieces
3. Cook

Choose one of these methods:

- Microwave. Place fresh vegetables in a microwave-safe bowl. Add a small amount of water and cover with a plate or napkin. Microwave 3-5 minutes or until fork tender. Check often. Check frozen veggie package labels for microwave steps.
- Roast. Preheat oven to 450°F. Place veggies in a single layer on a baking sheet or pan. Rub with 1 tablespoon of oil and season, if desired. Turn vegetables once halfway through cooking. Cook 10-15 minutes until fork tender and slightly brown in places.
- Steam. Bring 1 inch of water to a boil in a pan. Place a metal colander or steaming basket in the pan. Place stems in the basket. Cover and steam for 2 minutes. Add the florets, cover and keep steaming until fork tender, about 3 to 5 more minutes.

Kids Can...

- find a rainbow of vegetables—red, orange, yellow, green and purple.
- wash veggies.

Try Veggies Fresh, Canned or Frozen

- ✓ Fresh. When they're in season and cost less, buy extra and freeze.
- ✓ Canned or frozen. Buy them when a recipe calls for a veggie that is not in season. Buy extra when they are on sale to store them for months.

Monthly Food Hero Checklist

- ☐ Try a new way of cooking veggies.
- ☐ Have kids help wash broccoli or cauliflower.

This Highway 26 sign marks a northwest border area of the reservation. The subject came up last week at Tribal Council as to how to acknowledge the Turkish agency that agreed to donate $200,000 for the new water tower that will serve the K-8 school. Apparently not fully familiar with the importance of tribal sovereignty, a Turkish representative suggested putting a marker at the reservation border. Tribal Council quickly rejected that idea. Council chairman Austin Greene suggested a marker at the water tower itself would be more appropriate.

Health conferences at KNT

The tribes will host the Meth/Suicide Prevention/Tobacco Conference at Kah-Nee-Ta on Monday through Wednesday, May 12-14. The conference will be from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day. Continental breakfast and lunch will be available. Also coming up:

The tribes will host the SB 770 Health Cluster meeting at Kah-Nee-Ta on May 28. The SB 770 meetings allow both administrators from Department of Health and Human Services and tribal representatives to meet quarterly and work on issues together to maintain a cooperative relationship.

Peaceful Spirit Outing seeks help

The Peaceful Spirit Outing—Honoring Our Wounded Warriors through Fly Fishing and Cultural Sharing is planned for June 6-8 at Lower Dry Creek.

Organizers are calling for fishing guides, volunteers and donations to honor veterans. For information contact Casey Green at 541-325-2147.

Telecom

The importance of future generations is a strong theme at the Telecom. Another recent example, the Telecom and Kah-Nee-Ta Golf co-hosted the Boys and Girls Club golf scramble this past Saturday. The event is an important fund-raiser for the club. Telecom marketing and sales coordinator Gabriel Walker took the lead in bringing in businesses to the golf scramble. One participant is coming from Santa Barbara to participate. Others participating are companies that work regularly with the Telecom, Walker said. Beginning its third year of operation, the Warm Springs Telecom is the tribes' newest enterprise. The growth so far has been dramatic, with the future holding even greater potential.
