New housing nearing completion

The first four units of the Greeley Heights subdivision may be ready for occupancy in just a little over a month.

The first four units—one 3-bedroom, two 4-bedroom, and one 5-bedroom—have an occupancy date of July 2, said Desirae Wallace, project coordinator of the Warm Springs Housing Authority.

Housing is planning to host a ribbon cutting dedication for the Greeley Heights project, she said.

All of the parties to the project—the tribes, the state of Oregon, the investor and assets consultant—are hoping to attend the dedication.

The Greeley Heights project eventually will include 35 units, with a total cost of $9.7 million.

The project is possible through a partnership unique in the nation, involving tribal and private enterprises, and state and federal agencies.

Desirae is working on completing the paperwork for the first residents of the subdivision. There is an extensive qualification process, based on income, credit history, etc.

Housing is still taking applications for the units. For more information you can reach Housing at 541-553-3250.

Town hall on sea lion predation bill

Sea lion predation has been a growing problem for the past 10 to 15 years for the Treaty Tribes of the Columbia River.

Record numbers are now seen at Bonneville, Willamette Falls, at the mouth of the Columbia, and elsewhere in the basin.

The Columbia River Inter-Tribal Fish Commission has been advocating for some solution, and Congress is considering a law to address the issue.

The problem is evident in recent research:

A study by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration found that a 45 percent of returning Columbia River spring chinook, including an Endangered Species Act-listed population, went missing in the lower Columbia. The estimate takes into account harvests and other known impacts.

The reduced survival for spring chinook corresponds closely with the huge increase in California Sea lions entering the Columbia River.

Congress in June is scheduled to hold hearings on a law that would amend the Marine Mammal Protection Act, allowing some control of the sea lion population in the Columbia. Tribal Councilman and CRITFC chair Carlos Smith will present the tribal case at the Congressional hearing on the bill, HB 564.

Before the June hearing, a town hall meeting is set for Saturday, May 30 at Oregon City, starting at noon. The town hall will be hosted by U.S. Congressman Kurt Schrader, along with the Columbia River tribes, Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife, and the Coastal Conservation Association of Oregon.

Councilman Smith is encouraging all interested tribal members to attend the town hall (see page 10 for details).

The law would give the four Treaty Tribes of the Columbia, and CRITFC, the authority to apply for a permit to remove 10 to 12 sea lions.

Doug Hatch, senior fisheries scientist at CRITFC, has been studying the sea lion predation problem. "The California sea lion population has been growing exponentially," Hatch said.

In the early 1970s the sea lion population was estimated at about 20,000 to 25,000. Since 1972, the year of the Marine Mammal Protection Act, the sea lion population has grown to about 325,000.

The sea lions are protected by the Marine Mammal Protection Act, not by the Endangered Species Act.

A similar situation happened this year with cormorants, protected by the Migratory Bird Act. A population explosion of cormorants on a man-made island in the Columbia resulted in the predation of millions of juvenile salmon.

Federal agencies made an exception in the case of this specific cormorant population, allowing the U.S. Corps of Engineers to control the number of birds on the island.

In the case of the sea lions, the law would give the four Treaty Tribes of the Columbia, and CRITFC, the authority to apply for a permit to remove 10 to 12 sea lions.

New home for casino HR

New offices, and a new training program are among the recent changes at the Indian Head Casino Human Resources Department.

Human Resources moved recently to new offices located in the center building of the Warm Springs Plaza. The new location includes offices, and a large training room for new and current employees.

Before, the HR staff were in the main building of the casino, but had limited space for training and other programs.

"Now they have seven or eight times more space," said casino general manager Harold Baugus.

The Human Resources Department invites the public to an open house and job fair at the new HR offices on Wednesday,

Dave McMechan/Spilyay

The Indian Head Casino Human Resources Department staff includes benefits coordinator Karen Goodell, HR coordinator Georgianna George, training director Wyval Rosamilia, and HR director Margie Tuckta.

June 3, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Indian Head Casino HR is implementing training programs for new employees, and existing employees.

For the new hires, the orientation focuses on the casino and its operation, and also on the culture and history of the Confederated Tribes, said Wyval Rosamilia, Indian Head Casino training director.

"Harold wants to make sure we're giving the employees the tools they need to succeed," she said, "and to have the best customer service."

The casino employs between 190 and 200 people. The orientation training is mandatory for new hires, while current employees will also have new training opportunities, in leadership, customer service, safety, etc. "The goal is to provide optimal service to the guests," Harold says. This in turn, he said, will enhance casino reveunes.

Fairs a great place to show arts, crafts

by Bethann Beamer
W.S. OSU Extension

Crafters and artisans: It is time to start thinking about submitting your creations to the local county fairs.

The Jefferson County Fair in Madras runs July 15-18 this year. Categories include the following:

Traditional clothing, dresses and ribbon shirts, vests, jackets and coats, blankets and shawls, leggings and other body wear, moccasins, gloves, belts and buckles, bags, cradle boards and dolls, other traditional items, as well as a kid’s crafts category.

There are adult and youth age group divisions.

The Wasco County Fair is later in the summer, August 13-15. Native American Building superintendent is Thelma Alsup, and she can be reached at 541-544-3815.

Jefferson County Native American Department superintendent Arlene Boileau offers this helpful hint for successfully submitting items to be judged:

Be sure to fill out exhibitor tags for all the items you wish to enter. Tags are available at the fairgrounds for open class entry, usually the Tuesday before fairs begin.

If you don’t fill out your own tags, submissions will not be eligible for judging, and it will be difficult to get items returned to the rightful owner.

Entries must be created within the last two years, according to one’s own tribal traditions, and each exhibitor can only enter one item per class. Make sure your items are in good repair.

Warm Springs OSU Extension and 4-H will again be hosting two Kids’ Fair Workshops for open class submission to Jefferson County Fair.

July 8 will be art and crafts items, followed by jams and jellies, cupcakes, and perhaps some dried food items. The focus age group is youth ages 8-12.

OSU Extension is considering holding an exhibitor tag workshop right before the fair; so youth and adults submitting to open class can properly fill out their own exhibitor tags.

The information on the tags helps the fair staff identify where to send premium checks, so doing them correctly is kind of a big deal.

OSU staff have done this step for the community the last several years, but it is time for residents to take on this function themselves.

It is hoped that there will be many quality entries from the community of Warm Spring this year. This is great opportunity to showcase the wonderful crafting and artisan traditions that are alive and well on the reservation.

Sea lions: growing problem to salmon, sturgeon

When this permit is filled, the tribe could apply for another license until a total of 92 sea lions are taken per year.

Hatch says research indicates that, in at least some cases, the same sea lions are returning to the same areas of the Columbia. Removing these specific animals could alleviate the problem, he said.

The sea lion problem has become especially noticeable recently, Hatch said.

The situation appears related to a warming of waters off of California, which impacted the sardine population, a main food source for the sea lions in that area.

The sea lions migrated north, where some of them found the smelt run in the Columbia.

The sea lions migrated north, where some of them found the smelt run in the Columbia. They followed the run up the river, and have been seen in larger and larger numbers in places where they were not known to congregate.

The salmon are not the only fish species impacted by sea lion predation:

“Stellar sea lions are preying on broodstock-sized sturgeon, many of which are 50 to 70 years old and are vital for producing young. The Columbia River white sturgeon population has been in steep decline since the sea lion influx over the past 10 to 15 years. Currently there is no commercial or recreational harvest of these white sturgeon.”

The Pi-Ume-Sha Health Fair will be Wednesday, June 24. Anyone interested in setting up at the health fair should contact Community Health at 553-2460.

Gen-I Challenge

Warm Springs youth are taking the Gen-I Challenge, having been selected to attend the White House Native Youth Summit

During the Gathering of Nations Powwow, Pres. Obama launched Generation Indigenous (Gen-I), a national initiative focused on removing barriers to success for Native youth.

Gen-I also includes a call to action to Native youth to take positive action in their communities by developing community based projects and to Tribal Leaders to support youth led efforts.

Jodi Gillete, former special assistant for Native American affairs to Pres. Obama, shared at the recent Affiliated Tribes of Northwest Indians that Gen-I is “trying to get youth more active with the White House and the Presidency.”

She said the First Lady wanted to make sure that “Native youth know that we care about them.”

Several youth from the community have taken the Gen-I challenge including:

Gavin Begay, Malia Collins, Mitchell Lira, Ashley Meanus and Keeyana Yellowman, who are working together to start a Warm Springs Youth Council for youth ages 14-24. Their 30, 60, and 90 day plans include continued outreach to Native youth in the commu-

Thank you to our children Levi, Pearl, children Charmaine, Prenencia, Jenny, and Trina for the daily visits; Tiger and Tates, Chet and Beck and boys Itta and Cowboy, Wolfman, Eliza, Rigo and children Robert-Marella family.

Thank you to one of his best friends Marvin Ike, and Priscilla Frank for coming up for his last hours and staying; to Ron Lockwood for coming to be with us, and for the food, big pizzas for the family, and the words said with the family in Bend.

To Utwai Bobby Suppah and Harvey Fudd for staying and praying in Bend. Thank you to my children Vernon and Ladonna Squiemphen for coming home to be with us and running us to Washington. Thank you to my grandson Mychal Van Pelt for helping drive us over and back to all the trucks that came over to Madras to help with all the stuff; Charmaine – Robert Jr. Tiana.

Thank you family from Yakima (sisters) travelling and spending valuable time with Harvey, son Qungn Jim for the daily calls to make sure he remembers. So much thanks to the family before and after the funeral, for his plan was completed. Larry Dick and Sam Starr, you did good work at the hospital, and with the blessing sending him off.

Wilson Wewa, you know how he enjoyed the song and dance. We believed, when he danced, Rex again you remember the war bonnet you helped bless, and the leadership you do well. Joday, I couldn't make it through the days, and your words came to me, you have a blessed way with your walk. Thank you to my my granddaughters, knowing tradition and changing bed linen, getting me clean clothes. Like you girls told me, we loved Dad-grandpa too, he's ours, so it's our job as traditional women to do this, Eliza Madrano, Marella Van Pelt and Ashley Surface. I'll never forget Mina Shike Estimo for traditional food, and Shania Tom for digging roots for me; and Liliana and Wenona for the household stuff and Indian food; and my sister for the kitchen supplies.

Thank you to the paramedics for being there the last time we called. Thank you for the compassion you had for Harv. The PD (I don't remember names), you were so great.

I felt so alone, but again all went as his plan. That makes it all the easier. Thank you children for the trip to the Shaker services. Again thanks Larry and Sam for your special leadership, the funeral blanket and service at Simnasho, on Memorial Day. Thanks for all the hugs. All this time is very painful and heart-breaking for us, the family and children. The lil' ones don't really understand. Luv u all,

The children of home love you Gloria for all the cooking for grandpa. Tony and boys: Lil Marella for the loving care you showed from your heart.

Gates Scholarship

Jazmine Ike-Lopez

Jazmine Ike-Lopez earned a rare honor during her senior year at Madras High School.

Jazmine became a Gates Millennium Scholar, earning a full scholarship to college. She is one of just 28 high school seniors in the state to earn this scholarship, founded by the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation.

Madras High School was well represented in the scholarship program this year, with three students earning the Millennium Scholar award.

The scholarship is based on grade point average, involvement in the community, and leadership.

Jazmine will be attending Pacific University in Forest Grove, where she is planning to study business and marketing management.

Part-time during the school and during the summer, Jazmine works in radio production at KWSO 91.9 FM in Warm Springs.

Jazmine is graduating in June with the MHS Class of 2015. Her parents are Rhonda Ike and Saloma Lopez.

This week she is attending the Native American Leadership Conference at the Great Wolf Lodge in Washington.

She was asked for her advice on how to reach goals and be successful. She said, “Give everything a shot. And don't second-guess yourself.”

Congratulations to Jazmine, Gates Millennium Scholar.

Thank you

A special thank-you from the wife of Harvey M. Jim. My sweetheart, as we knew, had been sick well over eight years. I let family know of changes, times we were in the hospital. He knew he was getting more sick. We made plans. He always thought I'd go first, for I spent four months in the hospital. Our children were aware of the plans we decided together, along with religious leaders.

Harvey took a turn on August 14, and went through two major surgeries. I called family. He was in the hospital for 32 days. We thought we licked it. Thanks to our children, the hospital stay was made easier for me. Our niece Winona Strong was with us 24/7 helping feeding, changing, and holding me when I cried.

My sister Charlotte Shike and great-granddaughter Anona Francis made sure we had something to eat. Thank you Anona for the meaningful prayers. Thank you Sandra Danzuka for the beautiful cards you made for G-Pa; Eliza, Rigo, Shlitsa, Savana, Rod and loving Tyrone, you know you all will always remember, the love G-Pa had for all of you. Thank you Wolfman and Chet for the daily visits and calls, helping with caring for Dad. Thank you all from the Senior Center for the calls and hugs we got. Thank you for all the prayers for our family. The family has extra memory cards. Thank you nieces and nephews for being with us, and the traveling you did for uncle.

To Harvey's casino buddies and veteran comrades, I feel for all of you too.

I can go on and on but when you feel a loss as big as losing a loved one, I tell myself we took good loving care of him. The hurt is real—one day at a time.

Love to all,
Eliza Brown-Jim.

Celebration

We would like to thank everyone who joined us for our Spring Celebration here at Coffee Creek Minimum Facility.

We greatly appreciate your time and efforts in making this event possible. The singing and drumming especially were uplifting and cleansing.

This is our one ceremony we look forward to all year long.

Through various donations of beads, leather, and beading supplies, we were allowed to make items for our giveaway this year for the first time. The women put much love into their work to show their appreciation.

A huge thank-you to all the volunteers, elders and anyone else not mentioned. We look forward to seeing you all next year.

Thank you to Chaplain Al-Amin, Red Lodge volunteers, drummers and singers, guests, Tawna for the frybread and those who donated food. Thank you Ed Edmo for the stories and jokes. And thank you speakers for sharing knowledge and teaching and inspiring words.

Thank you until next time.

Victoria Rocha, and all the Native girls at Coffee Creek.

Today, my motivation to be a better person was completely replenished. There were tribal members who role modeled and displayed what a productive member of society looks like to me. They did this by taking time out of their lives, coming to Coffee Creek Correctional Facility. You not only brought us traditional foods, but sang songs and shared stories and words of advice.

The reminder of the beat from the drum, as well as the nutrients and flavors of the foods, helps give us the strength to get through this time in our lives.

We can't express our thanks enough. Thank you for bringing us a piece of home. Lots of love, Susee Davis, and all the Native girls at Coffee Creek.

From OSU Extension

As the new Warm Springs OSU Extension agriculture agent, it is a priority of mine to continue offering classes and clinics that have been offered in the past.

In February we held a Bangs vaccination clinic for cattle, and in May we helped the Range and Ag Department, Fay Hurtado and the OSU Veterinary School host a horse castration clinic.

We scheduled a Coggins test and vaccination clinic for April 30, only to have to cancel, as the USDA veterinarian was called away to help with the avian flu outbreak in the Midwest.

It had been my hope that we could reschedule this clinic for late May when the USDA veterinarian returned. Unfortunately, the USDA veterinarian will be held indefinitely in the Midwest to fight the avian flu outbreak which has killed over 3 million birds.

Despite my best efforts, no other government or OSU vets are available at this time. Horse owners will need to make arrangements for their horses with private veterinarians off-reservation.

Community Garden

On a more positive note, I have been working with Edmund Francis, and have purchased and planted seven fruit trees in the Community Garden.

We look forward to harvesting fruit from these trees in the next couple of years.

And I will continue to offer gardening classes and work with Edmund on the Community Garden. If you have any gardening or agriculture questions, please feel free to call us so we can help you out.

Check out the new Warm Springs Agriculture Facebook page for news and information on classes and agriculture in general. Enjoy this nice spring weather and hope your garden is healthy and productive.

Buff Intermediate School teaches the ABCs of bike safety

Volunteers and faculty at Buff Intermediate School are helping students in the third, fourth and fifth grades safely walk and bike their way through the community for the fifth year as part of the Walk+Bike program.

“Walk+Bike provides students with an opportunity to be safe in the streets and aware of their surroundings as well as stop signs, stoplights and the cars and drivers on the road.”

— Brian Horton, PE teacher at Buff Intermediate School

As part of the program, third grade students walked around town and learned how to obey the rules of the road such as crossing streets where crosswalks are present, using stop signs and crosswalks at intersections, and understanding stop lights and signals for pedestrians,” Horton said.

The fourth and fifth grade students were also provided with loaner bikes and helmets and participated in a series of instruction, obstacle courses and games designed to teach them riding skills and proper bike safety.

“I learned that helmets save lives,” said Brooke Delmarter, grade 5.

“We should use turn signals like cars because we share the road with them,” said Ethan Hall-White, grade 5.

“I felt like this year’s event and events in the past were successful in that students were able to transfer what they learned in class and apply it to real-life situations,” Horton said. “This training is something that the learners will remember and use often throughout their lives.”

Madras High School student receives high desert hero award

The Center Foundation recently named Madras High School senior Melissa Olivera as a High Desert Hero. This award is presented each month during the school year to an outstanding Central Oregon student leader who demonstrates a high Grade Point Average, school leadership and community involvement. In addition to public recognition, Olivera received a college scholarship.

“Melissa is wise, humble and compassionate. While she certainly deserves all the recognition she is receiving at this point, she is motivated by a much higher purpose; she genuinely finds joy in pursuing the best in herself and in building up others.”

— Eric Carman, National Honor Society Advisor

“Melissa is an outstanding student and an even better person.”

— Leo Tson, MHS Business Teacher and FBLA Advisor

“We are fortunate to have Melissa Olivera as a part of our learning community. She is sincere, intelligent, and hard working. She has done a wonderful job representing Madras High School and I am excited for her current and future successes!”

— Sarah Braman-Smith, MHS Principal

Madras High School’s new Performing Arts Director has been all-in from the start

From the day-to-day operations of managing finances and marketing to the more creative aspects of sound and light management, new Director of Performing Arts Shannan Ahern is the backbone of Madras High School’s Performing Arts Center.

At the very beginning, Ahern was part of the bond committee that advocated for funding of the new Performing Arts Center back in 2012 and was on the committee that helped to design the new space.

“I am eager to see this wonderful building meet its full potential,” Ahern said. “I want it to become a mainstay for the community: when they think of great performances, I want them to immediately think of this venue and have it be a destination for them.”

As director, Ahern also hopes to be an advocate for students and the greater Madras community.

“I am passionate about the arts, appreciate how much they help our kids to grow into well-rounded human beings and want to do everything in my power to give kids the chance to experience them and learn that opportunities do exist there,” Ahern said. “I love the thought of opening up a whole new world to someone and helping them find their calling and their passion.”

Shannan Ahern

Ahern’s goal is to also provide a cultural venue for the Madras community to attract larger acts and performances that draw larger crowds.

“In many ways, this community is culturally-rich, but also culturally-starved,” Ahern said. “I want this center to help fill that niche and need. I want to bring things to this stage that most folks would otherwise not have the opportunity to experience.”

Jefferson County Middle School students learn outdoors

Sixth grade students from JCMS recently attended a three-day outdoor school at Camp Tamarack near Suttle Lake. The students enjoyed outside learning where they studied ecology and discussed how all the parts of the planet need each other and depend on each other.

“Students got their hands dirty with field studies focusing on water, fire, and plants,” said JCMS teacher Gena Bennett. “They sampled water quality, determine pH, dissolved oxygen and turbidity and identified macroinvertebrates from Dark Lake.”

According to Bennett, the 86 students who participated also studied the effects of fire on an ecosystem and learned about plant adaptations.

“The other goal was to encourage team work and new friendships,” said Bennett. “They stayed in cabins and shared responsibilities for kitchen and cleaning duties.”

There was also archery, canoeing, gaga ball, hiking and printmaking during the day followed by evening skits and songs by the campfire.

“At Camp Tamarack a great experience was overcoming my fears. I wish I could have stayed forever. My advice would be to enjoy every moment.”

Sea Lion Predation Town Hall with U.S. Congressman Kurt Schrader

May 30, 2015 * 12pm * Clackamette Park * Oregon City, Oregon

Sea Lion Predation: An Unprecedented Threat to the Survival of Endangered Columbia and Willamette River Salmon, Steelhead, and Sturgeon

On May 30th, U.S. Congressman Kurt Schrader (D-Canby) will join members of Coastal Conservation Association (CCA) Oregon, Columbia River Treaty Tribes, Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife (ODFW) officials, local elected officials, and other concerned citizens for a

Town Hall to discuss the need for federal legislation to address the serious threat growing populations of sea lions pose to Columbia and Willamette River fish populations, including endangered salmon and steelhead.

The purpose of the Town Hall is to show our federal and state officials that broad support exists for action to address the impact of sea lion predation on our endangered salmon, steelhead, and other fish species!

Congressman Schrader has joined with Congresswoman Jaime Herrera Beutler (R-Camas) to introduce the Endangered Salmon and Fisheries Predation Prevention Act (H.R. 564), to amend the Marine Mammal Protection Act (MMPA) to allow federal, state and tribal fish managers to address the predation on endangered fish populations in the Columbia and Willamette Rivers. Unfortunately, current federal law under the MMPA is failing our fish! Why is action needed?

To save our endangered, wild fish from extinction!

- The Columbia River system is home to 13 different species of salmon and steelhead listed under the Endangered Species Act (ESA). Sea lion predation threatens the survival of several populations of ESA-listed wild spring Chinook and Steelhead.
- In 2014, ODFW estimates that sea lions below Willamette Falls consumed 8 percent of the wild, ESA-listed upper Willamette River spring Chinook run and 13 percent of the wild, ESA-listed Willamette River Steelhead run, further threatening extinction.
- A recent NOAA study found that 45 percent of returning Columbia River spring Chinook, including an ESA-listed population, went missing in the lower Columbia River (even after harvest and other known impacts). The reduced survival for spring Chinook corresponds closely with the huge increase in California sea lions entering the Columbia.
- Steller sea lions are preying on broodstock-sized sturgeon, many of which are 50-70 years old and are vital for producing young. The Columbia River white sturgeon population has been in steep decline since the sea lion influx over the past 10-15 years. Currently there is no commercial or recreational harvest of these white sturgeon.

Kids Camp 2015 set for mid June

Legal Notice

To Native American Farmers or Ranchers or the heir of one who was denied a USDA farm loan or loan servicing between 1981 and late 1999

Some funds paid in settlement of Keepseagle v. Vilsack remain unclaimed and will be distributed in accordance with a process established by the Court. The case claimed that USDA discriminated against Native Americans who applied for or tried to apply for farm loans or loan servicing. The Court seeks input from class members about how the remaining funds should be distributed. Of the $680 million paid to settle the case, approximately $380 million remains. The Settlement Agreement approved by the Court directs that unclaimed funds be given to non-profit organizations to serve Native American farmers and ranchers.

The deadline to file a claim has passed. There is no new claims process.

Who is included?

The Class includes all Native American farmers and ranchers who:

- Farmed or ranched or attempted to do so between January 1, 1981 and November 24, 1999;
- Tried to get a farm loan or loan servicing from the USDA during that period; and
- Complained about discrimination to the USDA either on their own or through a representative during the time period.

The class does not include individuals who:

- Experienced discrimination only between January 1 and November 23 1997; or
- Complained of discrimination only between July 1 and November 23, 1997.

Proposed use of the Funds

There are several competing options for how to distribute the funds.

First, Plaintiffs propose to modify the Settlement Agreement, subject to Court approval, to distribute the funds as follows:

- $342 million distributed by a Trust, overseen by Native American leaders, to non-profit groups to serve Native farmers & ranchers over a 20 year period.

- $38 million be distributed quickly to non-profit organizations serving Native farmers & ranchers, identified by Class Counsel and approved by the Court.

The Trust would make grants to organizations providing business assistance, agricultural education, technical support, or advocacy services to Native American farmers and ranchers, including those seeking to become farmers or ranchers, to support and promote their continued engagement in agriculture. The USDA has agreed with this proposal.

Second, Marilyn Keepseagle proposes to distribute all remaining funds as additional damages paid to successful Track A claimants alone. The USDA opposes this proposal.

Third, other class members have asked to use the funds to pay claims that were initially denied or to permit new claims to be filed.

Fourth, the Choctaw Nation has argued that no changes should be made.

How can I share my views?

If you want to tell the Court of your support of or opposition to any proposal for use of the remaining funds, you may submit written comments, postmarked no later than June 15, 2015, to:

First graders get a taste of authorship

First-graders from the Warm Springs Eagle Academy will join other local first-graders for the Annual Gift of Literacy celebration.

The first-graders will travel this Friday, May 28, to the Madras High School Performing Arts Center.

About 300 students are expected to participate.

The Gift of Literacy program runs for eight months, and is designed to promote the love of reading at an early age. The program inspires long-term success in school and in life.

At the Friday event, the students will meet children's author Eric Kimmel, who will lead them in creating stories of their own.

Kimmel began dreaming about becoming an author in kindergarten, and has now published more than 50 titles, many of which have won numerous awards.

The author's books have appeared on school and library recommended lists, and have won prestigious awards such as the Caldecott Honor Medal (for Hershel and the Hanukkah Goblins) and the Sydney Taylor Picture Book Award (for The Chanukkah Guest and Gershon's Monster).

"Our main goal is for the kids to have fun with literacy, discover the love of reading and be celebrated by our community," said Melinda Boyle, director of curriculum and instruction for the Jefferson County school district.

"This is my favorite day of the year," she said. "I love watching the children walk away from the event with the book they received and feeling excited about reading."

Clifford the Big Red Dog, Skippy John Jones and Pete the Cat will also be on hand to meet students, as they participate in a number of volunteer-led activities, including group readings, art projects and games.

Students will also receive a hardbound copy of one of the six books highlighted in this year's program, a book bag filled with educational goodies, lunch and a t-shirt.
