Countyline 2 moving to containment

Close to 600 fire fighters are on the reservation in response to the Countyline 2 fire.

The fire burned across 60,000 acres, and destroyed four residential buildings. Two of the homes were not being occupied. There were no reported injuries as of earlier in the week.

The Health and Human Services Branch, Social Services, is helping families in need. And the tribes have a fire assistance program.

The Countyline 2 fire has disrupted the community for the past week, with several families relying on the Red Cross and Health and Human Services shelter, set up at the community center. About 30 people were staying there during the worst days of the fire.

As of earlier this week, Countyline 2 was reported to be about 30 percent contained, with a projection for further containment in coming days. The Shitike Creek area was the point of focus in the latest phase of the response.

Countyline 2 is one of many fires burning in the Northwest. Other areas have seen significant home loss: The Canyon Creek Complex fire in the John Day area destroyed at least 26 homes, and the Clearwater Complex fire in Idaho destroyed 42 homes.

The loss of buildings on the Warm Springs Reservation could have been much worse, with high wind gusts during the first days of the blaze. But the response crews were diligent and effective in protecting homes, said John Halliday, BIA Warm Springs superintendent.

He and Bobby Brunoe, general manager of Natural Resources, updated Tribal Council on the fire situation earlier in the week. Brunoe, and Trey Leonard at Fire Management, agreed that the fire teams did a great job in protecting homes, often working the line between approaching flames and the residences.

Initial response

The fire started last Wednesday, August 12, by a driver who was hauling a trailer with an apparently defective wheel. The wheel rim, in contact with the roadway, created sparks setting off a series of fires along Highway 26, according to reports.

Red Hills property dedication

The Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs are planning a dedication ceremony at the Red Hills conservation property. The dedication had been set for this week, but had to be postponed. A date for the dedication has not yet been determined.

The 277-acre Red Hills Conservation Area was purchased by the tribes through the BPA Willamette Wildlife Mitigation program.

This conservation area is similar to the tribes' Pine Creek Conservation Area in the John Day basin. The Pine Creek area has seen significant improvement in fish habitat under tribal management.

The Red Hills proposal was rated at the top of the list of proposed mitigation projects, when the tribes first made the proposal a few years, said Bobby Brunoe, general manager of tribal Natural Resources.

Working through complications in the purchasing process, the tribes are now ready to formally dedicate the conservation area. The tribes' Red Hills property is near the towns of Lafayette and Dundee in Yamhill County.

Carbon project on schedule

Don Sampson of Warm Springs Ventures updated Tribal Council last week on the carbon sequestration project: The goal for the program is to issue carbon sequestration credits by the end of this year, Sampson said.

The project remains on schedule, with the forest inventory having been completed in July, he said.

The forest data will be confirmed by an independent verifier, and the listing documents will be filed with the California Air Resources Board.

Carbon sequestration is a revenue generating project, proposed by Natural Resources and managed by Ventures. Tribal Council approved the idea last year.

Carbon sequestration involves management of forest land as an offset for California companies that release carbon into the atmosphere. Other states may follow the California's example.

Through forestry management, carbon can be captured from the atmosphere and stored by the trees. This is seen as a strategy to alleviate global warming.

The value of the carbon sequestration credits is not yet determined. In his report to Tribal Council, Sampson gave this information:

"At the beginning of September there are major changes coming to the California U.S. Forest Project Protocol that defines how carbon volumes and offset credits are calculated for this market."

Funding boost for Roots program

The Roots program is getting ready for its second school year. Last year Roots saw an enrollment of 50 students, said Dawn Smith, Roots director.

Eight students completed the credit requirements for Madras High School graduates, and three of the students walked with the MHS Class of 2015. Roots is the alternative education program in Warm Springs, part of Madras High School.

This year the program is starting the year with a funding boost: The Spirit Mountain Community Fund awarded Roots a grant in the amount of $147,696.

The program will now have probably the best computer work stations in the district, Smith said. The funding will allow for other upgrades to the program facilities.

Roots is located in school modules on teachers' row, by the old elementary school. They use one trailer for a classroom, and one for the computer lab. The students are renovating a third trailer as part of a learning curriculum.

Students in Roots focus on completing credits for graduation, and also learn by working with people in different professions on the reservation. Forestry, range and agriculture, and fish and wildlife are examples. Dawn Smith and teacher Earl Simmons are the staff at Roots.

About to start her second year at Roots, Dawn talks about some of the things she observed during the first year:

"I think the students learned that we expect a lot from them. Some might have thought this was an easy way out, but it's not. We expect a lot from them, and they have to be motivated to get things done."

Spirit Mountain Fund

The Warm Springs Education Committee this year submitted an application to the Spirit Mountain Community Fund on behalf of the Roots program.

Spirit Mountain Community

Fund director Kathleen George and staff then made a visit to the Roots program this year.

They were impressed with what they saw, and the grant application was a success: The Spirit Mountain Community Fund awarded the maximum amount available to grant applicants.

"Supporting tribal education efforts is one of our highest priorities," said Kathleen George, fund director. "And we believe the Roots program is an important program helping high school students to get their diplomas."

Progress with UAS test range program

GeoVisions, a division of Warm Springs Ventures, is working with VDOS Global in pursuing public and private contracting opportunities for the tribes’ unmanned aerial systems program.

VDOS Global—VDOS standing for Virtual Data Operations Support—is the first U.S. authorized inspection company of unmanned aerial systems (UAS), commonly called drones.

VDOS Global has its headquarters in Corvallis, with offices in Texas and Louisiana, and international divisions in Brazil, Mexico and Nigeria.

UAS flights on the reservation test range is planned for this fall. The company interested in the flights is Textron, known internationally for its brands of aircraft, defense and industrial products.

Public entities that are interested in working with the tribes on the UAS program are the BLM and Forest Service. The fire-fighting aspect of UAS technology has a great potential, Sampson said. BLM and Forest Service representatives have met with VDOS to discuss a training and standardization program for their use of unmanned systems, Sampson said. The idea is to use the Warm Springs test range as the operations center for training and curriculum, he said.

Some other highlights from Ventures’ recent update at Tribal Council:

Sandia Labs of New Mexico is interested in conducting operations at the Warm Springs test range for cyber security and sensor testing. Federal funding is already available for these activities.

Ventures and GeoVisions have completed their first contract, for $500,000, from the Special Public Works Fund; and have been approved for another $500,000 from the Oregon Strategic Reserve Fund, for a total of $1 million for UAS infrastructure.

This funding will allow the tribes to proceed with five test site developments—

Miller Flat, Metolius, Kah-Nee-Ta and Sidwalter. This will also help with renovation at Kah-Nee-Ta, including office and meeting space, and a flight simulation.

The state has also provided $3 million SOAR and the three test ranges in Oregon. This can be used for operational funding over the next two years.

Ventures is expecting to hire a business/development marketing manager in September. This person will lead the Warm Springs test range marketing and business recruitment efforts. The funds allow for the hiring of the project manager (VDOS), and a test range safety officer.

Ventures and GeoVisions have finalized the Warm Springs test range fees.

“This will serve as a source of revenue to repay the BIRF loan over the next three years,” Sampson said.

“We established fees for a client who wish to use the Warm Springs test range at approximately $9,600 per month per UAs.

Cannabis development

A committee under Warm Springs Ventures has been looking at aspects of the cannabis situation, since the state has voted to legalize its use. There is potential major revenue to the tribes from cannabis, as presented by a cannabis company in Colorado.

Meanwhile, the tribes have met with federal law enforcement to clarify the legal aspects of cannabis, which remains a controlled substance under federal and tribal law.

The legality, and potential commercial aspect have been the focus of the committee. Regarding the commercial potential: A state law appears to preclude the tribes from participating in the commercial benefits of the new law. However, tribal officials have pointed out the discrepancy to state officials, who appear to be willing to address the problem, said Pi-Ta Pitt, committee member. The membership may see a referendum on how the tribes should proceed regarding cannabis.

Getting Ready to Read

The Warm Springs Education Committee will host Ready to Read, on Tuesdays and Thursday, August 20, 25 and 27, from 6 to 7 p.m.

Ready to Read, held at the community center social hall, is for parents and kids who are getting ready for kindergarten.

The kids will work with Carol on a craft, while family members will work with an educator. Parents and family members will learn some tips to do at home to make sure kids are ready for kindergarten.

By the end of the sessions, each kid will leave with nine different books. Snacks will be provided at the Ready to Read sessions.

Sacred Hoop coming to W.S. in Sept.

September is National Recovery Month, and Warm Springs Prevention will be hosting events to mark the occasion.

Sacred Hoop will come to Warm Springs on Thursday, Sept. 3, at the Back to School Barbecue. And a Recovery Event is scheduled for Friday, Sept. 4, with guest speaker Carlos River, White Bison executive director.

The Sacred Hoop of 100 Eagle Feathers: In Black

Elk's vision, the Hoop of the World referred to the communities of Native people. In his vision he saw the Native people going through a long time of suffering, during which the hoop was broken. And then he saw that the people would begin to heal. The Elders have told us that we have now entered the time of hearing, and the "coming together time." The Sacred Hoop is the symbol of that time of healing.

The Mission of the Sacred Hoop: Healing individuals, families, communities and nations. The Hoop was built in a sweat lodge in May of 1995. A multicultural Elders gathering was held in Janesville, Wisc., to provide prayers for the Hoop, and align its purpose to the coming healing time. The Elders placed the four gifts of Healing, Hope, Unity and Power to Forgive the Unforgivable into the Hoop.

When the Sacred Hoop comes to a community, the people gather for ceremonies and talks about living a sober and healthy life that is balanced emotionally, mentally, physically and spiritually. Many communities have decided to begin a process of learning and planning that includes the building of a vision of wellness. ## Back to School BBQ at Academy on Sept. 3

New teachers in the Jefferson County School District 509-J will start the new school year on August 24, with the one-week new teacher induction program. The other teachers and staff will back on September 2.

The Warm Springs Back to School Barbecue is coming up on September 3, at the Warm Springs Eagle Academy.

The first day of school for students in grades k-9 is September 9. At the high school grades 10 through 12, the first day is September 10. In a note from this week's school board meeting:

The board hired a new band teacher for the high school, and a new district nurse.

The band leader at Madras High School will be Jared McFarlin, who previously taught band in grades k-12 in Montana. McFarlin became interested in the MHS job, as he wants to focus just on high school band.

The new district nurse, or district health service coordinator, is Brianna McFarlin, Jared's wife.

Countyline 2 blaze

Crews respond to the Countyline 2 fire, which burned across 60,000 acres on the reservation. Two helicopters (one at right) were in service after invocation of the Conflagration Act.

Community fire meeting (above), Sunday evening. The fire forced the closure of highways 26 and 3 (left).

Fire: forecast looks good

Investigators are now looking into the circumstances that led to the start of the fire.

Warm Springs Fire Management made the first response, but the fires had soon spread to the point where the BIA called in assistance.

Crews from fire agencies in 17 cities and eight counties arrived. In time, two helicopters were in service on Countyline 2.

The response was just in time, as high winds were an initial major problem in battling the flames. Crews worked to save seven homes that were directly in the path of the fire on the flat.

Several neighborhoods were put on evacuation alert, and West Hills and Sunnyside residents had to evacuate.

For management purposes the fire was divided in two parts, with Highway 26 as the separation line. Progress was good over the weekend, and the forecast remains favorable, said Scott Majors, of the state Fire Marshal's Office. By this coming weekend, he said, crews should have a good handle on the situation, though there is much work to be done.

At the Council meeting on Monday, resident Randy Smith commented that Natural Resources should consider restoring the burned-over land with plants that support wildlife. Bobby Brunoe said this will be considered.

Councilman Orvie Danzuka, of Forestry, reported that the fire had burned into several hundred acres of commercial timber, which may be salvaged.

Teeney Miller, Council office manager, commented that the fire crews did a great job in protecting homes in her neighborhood.

BINGO for Ladies Auxiliary

The Ladies Auxiliary is hosting a BINGO fundraiser this Wednesday evening, August 19, from 6-7:30 p.m. at the community center social hall.

The event is a fundraiser to purchase supplies for gifts for those who attend the Auxiliary District, set for Kah-Nee-Ta in 2016.

The Ladies Auxiliary is taking donations for BINGO items. Please drop donations off with Arlene Graham, LeMinnie Smith or Carol Sahme.

Carbon: upcoming milestones

After this regulatory change, the total value of carbon credits generated by any project could be reduced by over 50 percent."

He gave a timeline of some of the upcoming objectives of the project:

The forest modeling is to be completed by September 14; and an internal review of the modeling by September 21.

On the same date will be the submission of the final offset project data report de-tailoring the number of credits to be verified. Verification of the report would be in early to mid October, and a final approval of the audit would be in December.

Meanwhile, Ventures, Natural Resources and Tribal Council will work on establishing a sales and marketing strategy, developing policy and market analysis, and market training for staff.

The most important element will be the marketing on behalf of the tribes, and finding the buyer or buyers.

The fire response

A thank-you goes to all the fire fighters and camp crews who helped fight the Countyline 2 fire. The effort of these fire teams kept a bad situation from getting much worse.

On the reservation, two families lost their homes to the flames, and one person lost all his possessions in a trailer that burned.

Some neighborhoods had to evacuate, with families spending time at the Red Cross-Health and Human Services shelter. But things could have been much worse:

The drought conditions, and high winds during the first days of the fire, made the Countyline 2 blaze very hard to contain. For a time there was a potential for major structural loss, such as happened with other fires in the region.

Generous donation

Jim Lane, owner of the Prineville Men’s Wear store, is a good friend to tribes. He has known Wasco Chief JR Smith for some time. Jim gave Chief Smith a very nice Pendleton blanket when JR became Chief.

Then more recently, Mr. Lane made a donation for people who have lost belongs during the County Line 2 fire, or are in need of help with clothing.

Mr. Lane gave the tribes five Prineville Men’s Wear gift cards, value of $150 each.

This story goes to show, Hard times can bring out the best in people.

Tradition of service

On another topic: A recent report shows that American Indians enlist in the military at higher per capita rates than any other racial or ethnic group in the U.S.

The report, from the Defense Department, says that the high rate of service translates to the military’s special forces:

Four percent of the enlisted Navy SEALs are Native Americans, while Native Americans represent just 1.2 percent of the general population, according to the U.S. Census Bureau.

So Native Americans are far more likely to advance to the elite units than other groups. Additionally, another 53 Native Americans serve in the Special Operation Forces.

Head Start celebration

Warm Springs Head Start this month is celebrating its Fifty Year anniversary, with an all-day celebration on Monday, August 31, at the community center.

Enterprises

Warm Springs People, Gaming and Kah-Nee-Ta began as separate business ventures for the Tribe and subsequently merged based on two things:

- 1) politics to push out board members who couldn’t be manipulated; and,
  - 2) to bring financial balance to Kah-Nee-Ta.
- Gaming’s sole intent was to generate revenue for tribal government with focus and priority funding for Public Safety, Social Services and Education.

However, due to political maneuvering, it became and automated money machine for Kah-Nee-Ta. There has been argument that the casino borrowed money from Kah-Nee-Ta to build the current building; however, the reality is all money generated at the old casino facility is what paid for the new casino.

The Council never voted to close Kah-Nee-ta. In fact, it was a board member who subsequently resigned who recommended that the tribe close Kah-Nee-Ta.

Kah-Nee-Ta is a seasonal enterprise with expected layoffs beginning in late fall, as it has always done. What is expected of Kah-Nee-Ta, is for it to stand on its own as it should and has done in the past. Kah-Nee-Ta has always found itself in the red; however, we have had three general managers in the past that proved it could generate profit. So it will take an effective general manager to generate revenue for Kah-Nee-Ta.

We, as a people, must give no energy to the negative Facebook page created to spread continued false gossip to separate us as a people. I would recommend to the Kah-Nee-Ta board to terminate all employees participating in embarrassing our tribal business with their personal agenda to create community chaos.

Most importantly, terminate the creator of the Facebook page. We, as a community are tired of you who generate bad feelings. Maybe when you are not benefiting from “tribal” dollars, you will learn to appreciate your tribe.

We have a lot of community members who need work, so we could fill your shoes real fast.

Warm Springs Forest Products Industries, good work to all you workers who took the measures in a positive way, through innovative decisions to keep this business operational. Kah-Nee-Ta, you could learn from WSFPI, this is how a business is operated.

Life balance a key to health for Courtney

by Montell Elliott
Coordinator, W.S. Diabetes Prevention Program

Don Courtney is an advocate of maintaining life’s balance. Don explains that balance includes spiritual, mental, emotional and physical.

The Diabetes Prevention Program helps with the physical.

Don started classes in May of 2007, and has continued to be active in the program for eight years.

He recently ran the Cascade Lakes Relay. And at the Glo Run in Warm Springs he ran dressed as Elvis.

Don also continues to be selective when making food choices, remembering to include fruits, vegetables and water. With the help of his coach, he has looked into recipes that include less fat and salt, including traditional foods such as smoked salmon.

He joined the Diabetes Prevention Program because of test results in the borderline range for blood sugar results, which is a diagnosis of pre-diabetes.

He then was referred to the Diabetes Prevention Program, and learned more about it. He recalls thinking, ‘It sounds like a pretty good thing.’

In class he learned about his then-favorite jalapeno burger being very high in fat (at least 44 grams, most of a day’s worth of fat). By the way, he says, he hasn’t had once since...

Reading labels to fit into a fat budget was a learning experience that has made Don more conscious of what he purchases at the grocery store.

Diabetes classes also taught him about balance of what is taken in for energy, such as portion control, fat intake and water, as well as leaving things out, like fried foods.

The class was his favorite part, because of the learning. The series of topics interested him, because of his belief that education is important.

Topics include nutrition, becoming active, problem solving, stress and motivation.

Having one-on-one coaching, continuing to meet every other week, has been very helpful in keeping his balance.

Don notes that every winter he used to gain between 10 to 15 pounds. This year he was able to maintain his optimum weight.

In closing, as a message to those reading this, Don says ‘Just Do It.’

“If you have a family history of diabetes or have been told you are borderline or diagnosed as pre-diabetic, it is up to you to do something about it.”

The next class starts in October, though you need to get signed up by September 18.

Youth Council reports on Gathering

The Warm Springs Youth Council met with community members recently.

They reported on their July trip to the White House Tribal Youth Gathering in Washington D.C.

The trip also included their participation in the 2015 National United National Indian Tribal Youth Conference.

The Warm Springs Youth Council has developed a constitution and by-laws, and code of ethics. Young people are invited to join the council:

Tribal Council talks with Sen. Ferrioli

Tribal Council met with Oregon Sen. Ted Ferrioli last week, discussing areas the tribes may be interested in during the 2016 Legislative session.

Environmental issues—the water resource, fisheries and coal transport, for instance—are among tribal priorities, said Councilman Reuben Henry. The local economy, new jobs especially, is another issue needing attention at all levels, he said. “Native Americans didn’t invent the welfare system,” Councilman Henry said.

He brought up the growing problem of sea lion predation on salmon in the Columbia River.

Sen. Ferrioli said in his opinion Native Americans should have a right to hunt the sea lions, as this was a tradition.

Another topic was the reservation economy:

The tribes are trying to develop new businesses, such as with the Unmanned Aerial Vehicle (UAV) program, said Councilman Kahseuss Jackson. The state can play a part in the tribes’ development of infrastructure for these new businesses, he said.

The state is also a key player in the tribes’ new TERO (Tribal Employment Rights Ordinance) office, Councilman Jackson said. He noted the state has come through with funding for the UAV program, and ODOT is planning work along Highway 26 through the Warm Springs community, which could be a good opportunity for the TERO program.

Sen. Ferrioli, R-John Day, said he would help in whatever way he can with the employment situation.

“I know unemployment in Indian Country can be as high as 50 percent,” he said. “The state (unemployment average, around 5.5 percent) does not reflect rural Oregon or the tribes.”

The manufacturing aspect of the UAV program has the best potential for good local jobs, he said. Partnerships could bring the jobs to the reservation, rather than to Redmond or Bend, he said.

Councilman Raymond Tsumpti brought up the issue of tribal member students from the Jefferson County 509-J School District wishing to transfer elsewhere, such as to South Wasco.

The Wasco district does not receive the Impact Aid money, even though the students are attending the South Wasco district schools.

Sen. Ferrioli said the funding should follow the student to whichever district the student chooses to attend.

They also talked about the need for a juvenile facility that is closer to Warm Springs. Juveniles who are detained currently have to be transported to the facility in The Dalles. This is not a good situation for families or for the youth.

At Council they agreed this is really a question for the BIA, which has the approval authority for a youth detention facility.

Haskell secures ten-year accreditation

Haskell Indian Nations University in Kansas secured accreditation for another 10 years, President Venida Chenault announced last week.

The Higher Learning Commission came to the campus in April for the university’s 10-year review. The visit resulted in accreditation until 2024-2025.

“When we bundle our commitment together, we can accomplish much for tribal students seeking to realize their dreams and potential through higher education,” Chenault said.

According to the Higher Learning Commission, Haskell had 741 full-time and part-time students as of April.

The university awarded 160 associates and bachelors degrees in the prior year.

Community notes

The Warm Springs Library is encouraging youth to read this summer. Kids can stop by the library anytime to pick up a new book for summer reading.

If you read a book and fill out one of the Library’s book slips, you can turn it in for a prize. The more books you read, the more slips you can fill out, and the more prizes you win.

A benefit for the Jefferson County Arts Association and the Art Adventure Gallery will be held on Saturday, September 12 at the Erickson Aircraft Collection Museum.

For ticket information call Coralee Popp at 541-475-6317. Or visit: artadventuregallery.com

The Warm Springs Community Action Team will host the Warm Springs Market this Friday, August 21, at the campus area by the WSCAT office.

The Warm Springs Back to School Barbecue is coming up on Thursday, Sept. 3 at the Warm Springs Eagle Academy, from 4-6 p.m. This is a chance for students, the community and teaching staff to get together, get to know one another, and gear up for the new school year. There will be backpacks and school supplies for students, plus information, food and fun. Everyone is invited.

ONABEN award helps artists

The Oregon Native American Business Network—ONABEN—has won an award from the U.S. Small Business Administration’s 2015 Growth Accelerator Fund Competition.

ONABEN will use the award to support expanded entrepreneurial services for the artists of the Qualla Boundary, home of the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians in North Carolina.

The award will also allow ONABEN to continue with its work on growing the Authentically Cherokee, a brand created to market these artists.

August is National Immunization Awareness Month. Pre-teens and teens need vaccines because they are at greater risk for certain diseases like meningitis, blood infection and the cancers caused by HPV Infection.

Being vaccinated not only helps protect adolescents from disease but also helps stop the spread of disease to the family, classroom and community.

Back to NABA World Series

Andy Leonard and teammates will be heading to the National Adult Baseball Association World Series in October. The games will be in Phoenix, Ariz.

This will be Andy's nineteenth trip to the NABA World Series. His teams were in the running for several years, and then they won the tournament in 2012.

Andy, 51, stays in shape by running and biking every day. For strengthening these days he uses bands more than lifting weights.

On the Portland Red Sox he plays second base and left field, and does some pitching.

Andy is the adolescent after-care specialist and recovery mentor at Warm Springs Community Counseling.

In high school Andy played baseball at Madras High School, earning a letter each of his four years there.

At age 27 he joined an adult baseball league, and has been playing ever since.

Leonard pays for his own travel to the tournament. The NABA World Series is played in the spring training facilities of Major League Baseball teams.

Nike program announces Gen-I grant opportunities

Grants for sport, physical activity programs initiatives

Nike and the N7 Fund have partnered with the Center for Native American Youth to offer grants for Native youth leaders promoting health and wellness through sport and physical activity in their community.

The new grant program is part of Pres. Obama's Generation Indigenous (Gen-I) initiative.

Gen-I is an initiative to help improve the lives of Native youth and to cultivate the next generation of Native leaders.

Gen-I includes new investments and policies to expand educational, employment, and health and social services for Native youth.

The Center for Native American Youth (CNAY), along with the Department of the Interior, have partnered to launch a National Native Youth Network.

Through this Network, CNAY has engaged over 2,000 Native youth from across the country in 2015.

Sam McCracken, CNAY board member and general manager of Nike's N7 programs, announced the new funding opportunity at the first-ever White House Tribal Youth Gathering on July 9.

The Warm Springs Youth Council was on hand for the event.

The gathering brought over 1,000 Native youth from across the country to Washington, D.C.

"N7 has allocated resources for Native youth as a part of N7's commitment to Gen-I," said McCracken.

"We created this opportunity in partnership with the Center for Native American Youth to bring sport and all of its benefits to Gen-I and to create further opportunities for future generations."

The National Native

Youth Network, a part of Gen-I, is aimed at providing a sustainable platform to engage and educational, leadership, and funding opportunities to Native American youth across the U.S.

This partnership, between CNAY and Nike, is an example of how the Network is expanding opportunities for, and bringing more resources to the 2.1 million Native American youth.

Native youth can now apply for up to $10,000 in funding for their programs and initiatives through the N7 Fund website.

For more information and to apply, please visit: n7fund.com/apply/

N7

"I am inspired by Sam McCracken's leadership and passion for making a difference in the lives of Native children through sport," said Erin Bailey, executive director of the Center for Native American Youth, a policy program at the Aspen Institute.

"Nike N7 represents a positive outlet and brand to many, and we are excited about their continued work to support Native youth through the Network."

The N7 Fund provides access to cash only grants to Native American and Aboriginal communities in support of sports and physical activity programs for youth.

The goal is to help unleash a child's potential through the power of sport.

Nike is inspired by Native American wisdom of the Seven Generations: "In every deliberation we must consider the impact of our decisions on the seventh generation.

CNAY

The Center for Native American Youth is dedicated to improving the health, safety and overall well-being of Native American youth through communication, policy development and advocacy.

Founded by former U.S. Sen. Byron Dorgan in 2011, the Center is a policy program within the Aspen Institute, headquartered in Washington, D.C.

The Center works to strengthen and create new connections as well as exchange resources and best practices that address the challenges facing Native youth.

Jobs potential with W.S. TERO office

The Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs have added another tool to their tool box when it comes to the challenge of new jobs.

Warm Springs has established a new TERO, or Tribal Employment Rights Office, located on the reservation at the Ventures-Construction office.

The TERO office was established through the support of the Warm Springs Tribal Council, which passed the TERO ordinance earlier this year.

“The Warm Springs Tribal Council supports the establishment of the TERO office,” said Tribal Council Chairman Eugene Greene Jr. “We see the inherent value to our community and surrounding communities through the partnerships we will develop through our TERO projects.”

TERO ordinances require that all construction employers—including the Oregon Department of Transportation contractors who are engaged in operating a business on or near reservations—give preference to qualified Indians in aspects of employment, training, promotion, contracting, subcontracting and other business activity.

TERO offices are established and empowered to monitor and enforce the requirements of the Tribal Employment Rights Ordinance.

The tribes’ authority to enact and enforce Indian/Native employment preference law is grounded in its inherent sovereign status. Inherent sovereign powers derive from the principle that certain powers do not necessarily come from delegated powers grant by express acts of Congress, but are inherent powers of a limited sovereign that have never been taken away.

Mary Sando-Emhoolah, Warm Springs TERO Director, and John Navarro, former president and co-founder of the Council for Tribal Employment Rights.

Tribes have a basic relationship with the federal government as sovereign powers, as recognized in both treaties and federal statutes. The Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs are an original Treaty Tribe in the state of Oregon.

There are three vital characteristics of TERO:

1. TERO is a true act of self-determination. The decision to enact a tribal employment rights ordinance is based on each individual tribe’s needs and priorities.
2. TERO programs are action oriented. TERO offices are a no-nonsense, hands-on, result-oriented and process driven compliance programs.
3. TEROs are systematically structured programs. Key elements of the structure include:

Legal framework: TERO utilities a sound and comprehensive framework that encompasses the use of tribal, federal, contract and, where applicable, state employment law.

Administrative structure: TERO programs have a well-developed administrative structure that utilizes a thorough enforcement process.

Synergistic partnering: TERO programs apply synergistic partnering principles in relations that benefit both parties.

TERO director

The Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs have hired Mary Sando-Emhoolah as their first TERO director.

Mary and her husband Mike own Emhoolah Trucking, and have been in business since 1997. They work on construction projects around the state and have worked through both the Confederated Tribes of Umatilla Indian Reservation and the Confederated Tribes of Grand Ronde TERO offices.

“I am excited that Warm Springs establishing a TERO office,” Mary says. “I see the benefits for local training, employment, contracting and subcontracting, and creating long-term positive working relationships with local contractors, and all that will be involved with the TERO office.”

Mary is a Warm Springs tribal member, and original shareholder of Chugach Alaska.

You can reach her at 541-615-0853. Her email is: mary.emhoolah@wstribe.org

Celebrating Head Start 50 Year anniversary

The Warm Springs Head Start Fifty Year Anniversary celebration is coming up on Monday, August 31. The all-day celebration will be at the community center.

Warm Springs Head Start started in the summer of 1965, and is one of the original members of the national program.

The August 31 event is a way to say thank-you to all the families and staff who help make Warm Springs Head Start a great experience for the students.

All current and former employees, former and current students and their families are invited, said Kirstin Hisatake, program director.

There will be a guest speaker, Mitch Factor, Head Start teacher and motivational speaker. There will be lunch, games and more.

County Line 2 fire response crews.
