Pageant Time
by Alyssa Macy

Miss Warm Springs 2015 Suzanne Stockish McConville, is a contestant for the Miss Indian World title.

The pageant will be held in Albuquerque, New Mexico, April 21-25, during the Gathering of Nations Powwow.

Suzanne is the daughter of Laura Stockish and Alfred McConville Jr. and is finishing up her first year at Eastern Washington University, majoring in criminal justice.

As Miss Warm Springs, she’s attended numerous events in the community including local New Year’s events, Lionel’s Powwow, the Museum at Warm Springs Honor Dinner, and most recently the Celilo Wy-O. Salmon Feast and Powwow. This will be the first national pageant that she has ever competed in.

State pot law raises prosecution issue on reservation

Sharing the mill down would increase local unemployment, and leave major outstanding debts to the Credit enterprise and the Business Incovation Revolving Fund, among others. But maintaining the current operation is no longer possible. The BIA cannot sign-off on new timber sales until a plan is in place that compensates the tribes for the timber.

WSFPI in 2014 was behind in its payments to the tribes for the timber.

Ensuring that the tribes receive fair market value for the logs is an essential part of any future plan of operation, as enterprise revenue funds the Senior Pension Fund and per capita, among other aspects of the tribal budget.

Council members say the WSFPI payments to the tribes are still at the top of the priority list of payments, rather than at the bottom.

The mill down-staging proposal also includes a proposal to realign the mill operation.

WSFPI, Council continue work on mill plan

The Warm Springs Forest Prodicts Industries board and management met again last week with Tribal Council, proposing a plan to keep the mill operating.

The scenario as proposed by WSFPI calls for realizing the workforce at the mill from 1094 to 85, plus a 10 percent salary decrease for the remaining employees, among other cost-saving measures. The mill would operate on a split shift, meaning that one crew would work all aspects of the milling process.

WSFPI and Tribal Council were scheduled to meet on the plan again this Tuesday afternoon (after the print deadline for this publication).

Council, the BIA and WSFPI have been working the past months on a plan to keep the mill in operation. All of the remaining options have a downside.

WSFPI calls for reducing the workforce at the mill from 104 to 85, plus a 10 percent salary decrease for its employees.

The scenario as proposed by WSFPI in 2014 was behind in its payments to the tribes for the timber.

Among other aspects of the tribal retirement list of payments, rather than at the top of the priority list of payments, rather than at the bottom.

Nike programs benefit Eagle Academy, MHS

The Warm Springs Eagle Academy has joined a Nike-sponsored college and career readiness program. This academy will participate in the Advance Via Individual Determination program, with funding by Nike.

The Warm Springs academy was one of 10 middle school in the state to participate. Madras High School was chosen to participate in the Nike School Innovation Fund (NSIF) program, this year benefiting 10 of the state’s high schools. This academy will include college and career readiness.

Participating schools receive intensive and rigorous instruction and programming for all students with coaching and support.

Grants support best practices for middle school, counselors and principal.

Good outlook for summer youth program

The outlook is positive for the return of the Native Aspirations summer youth employment and education program.

Tribe health liaison Caroline Cruz said the program has received a preliminary okay, and will be presented to Tribal Council for final approval.

The program is funded through tribal Health and Human Services.

Last summer, 96 young people took part in Native Aspirations, spending six weeks at various jobs around the reservation.

There is also a two-day a week education component, where students learn about health, tribal culture, history and related topics.

Ten of the Native Aspirations positions are targeted to college students, and the rest are for high school-age students.

For more information on the program contact Melinda Poitra at 541-553-3324.

Heart of Oregon

An added feature for the summer of 2015 will be a Heritage of Oregon Corps team serving the reservation, Cruz said. This will be the first year that Warm Springs has its own Heart of Oregon crew, she said.

Heart of Oregon will provide summer employment and education for a crew of people.

Boys & Girls fundraiser at KNT

Great Futures Start Here is marking its Sixth Anniversary this weekend.

The annual fundraiser for the Boys & Girls Club of Warm Springs is Friday and Saturday, April 17-18 at Kibbey’s. There is 18-hole golf scramble on Friday, with $72 per person or $280 for a foursome.

There will be a dinner, silent and live auction on Saturday, from 5-8 p.m. Dinner tickets are $50 in advance and $60 at the door.

There is also a two-day a week education component, where students learn about health, tribal culture, history and related topics.

Events will be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on both sides of the reservation.

This is for young people age 16-18.

The Heart of Oregon is a non-profit agency that re- stores property, simulates economic growth, and maintains the natural environment of the region.

Projects range from land management and electric reseeding in neighborhoods, to community service projects planned by the members.

Memorial

The family of the late Allen Langley Sr. will have a memorial gathering on Saturday, April 25, 2015. It will begin at the Agency Cemetery at 1 p.m. and military honors at 2:00 p.m. followed by a meal at the Warm Springs Veterans Hall at 3:19 p.m.

Focus on employment at HR Career Fair

The Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs is among the biggest employers in the region.

About 800 to 900 people work directly for the tribes, and another 600 to 700 work as one of the tribal enterprises, depending on the season.

There are maybe 1,500 steady employees al- one with Human Resources, director of tribal Hu- man Resources. But there are over 5,000 what Sato, director of tribal Hu- man Resources—located in the administration building, by the main entrance—features a new Em- ployment Center, where the Human Resources staff will help customers with resumes, cover letters, and job applica- tions. “We’re all about cus- tomer services here,” Eliza- beth Asahi says.

Natural Resources last week hosted its first Career Fair, with employers on hand from tribal entities such as Natural Resources, IHS, In- dian Head Carvings, Kick-Nee- Ta and the Telecom, as well as reservation employers including Department of Transportation, the U.S. Forest Services, and RVK Investments among oth- ers.

Higher Education and workforce training represen- tatives were also on hand to provide job seeker options. WorkSource Oregon was among the participants, sharing resources available in Jefferson and Douglas Counties, as well as tribal memb- ernumerary through bars- ties to employment. About 200 tribal member prospes for- mers showed up for the Career Fair.

The fateful plan is to ex- pand the Career Fair to in- clude large off-reservation employers from the around the region, Elizabeth says. The tribes have a significant positive economic impact from Madras to Bend, and the employment scenarios in these communities should not be fed that fact, she said.

She believes that all large employers in the region should have at least one tribal member employee, and she requests this of them when- ever she meets with prospec- tive employers.

Eliza- beth has great advice for anyone looking for a job or career. She encourages young people to pursue their formal education as far as they wish. “Anything is pos- sible when you understand the opportunities and your passion,” she says.

But, Elizabeth adds, a per- son who has not had higher edu- cation degrees should not feel discouraged from seeking a good career.

When it comes to career readiness, work experience can be as important, or more important than a degree.

Elizabeth is collaborating with WorkSource to enable the Warm Springs community to be “Work Ready.”

This initiative enables all prospective employers to par- ticipate in the national career readiness certification (NRC) program.

First Salmon
This year the spring chinook arrived at last they have been followed for thousands of years. Up and down the river their arrival is greeted by the tribal people.

The song that is part of the Chinook Festival includes feasts honoring the salmon revered for their run and their presence in the longhouses throughout the region. To me, the feasts are a reminder of how truly blessed tribal people are to have salmon return each year to feed and provide for our physical and spiritual needs. They are also a reminder of the spirit and richness of tribal culture—a culture that is still strong and connected to the land that we call home.

My meetings with state and federal agency representatives and officials, I often encourage them to take part in one of these communities. Too often, in the day-to-day fights over the salmon as a resource, we can lose sight of the fact that salmon are a gift from the Creator. Whenever I can, I take part in a First Salmon ceremony, not only so we can have salmon to eat, but also so we can honor the salmon. Everyone has a role to play in returning salmon to the river.

The salmon have to do more than return each year for eating and honoring the salmon. They have to do more than return for a long time. And we have to discover a lot of wisdom about what we are in love with. Now, in this era of growing numbers, the region is seeing the results of the leadership and expertise to restore and rebuild the Columbia River basin’s salmon run.

Paul Lumley, executive director of the Columbia River Inter-Tribal Fish Commission.

Spring clean up
A group of students from Sojourner Collegiate Academy at Bosco University visited Warm Springs on their spring break to conduct service work.

A total of 44 people, primarily students, came from the academy to perform work throughout the Bosco area, partnering with the community.

They did a deep clean of the three longhouses, a community-wide clean up. They did a deep clean of the longhouse, located at 4174 Highway 3 in Warm Springs. They also helped out at the Museum At Warm Springs, and helped out at the Multnomah Park, cleared the community-wide clean up in the three longhouses, a community-wide clean up.

School memories of Warm Springs

Katherine Schlick Nose spent some of her childhood on the Warm Springs Reservation, going to school here in the 1960s. Her first novel, Somewhere Held, was inspired by this experience. Some of the characters in the book are people she came to know while living in Warm Springs. The author will visit here, next Friday, April 17, for discussion of some of her experiences. She also has a slide presentation with pictures from her time at school.

Pot law: change on July 1

The U.S. Attorney is to meet with the tribes and de- termine the tribal opinion on the matter. A tribe could choose to follow the Depart- ment of Justice guidance; or follow the state law; or con- tinue extra enforcement.

Last fall, Oregon Measure 91, legalizing marijuana for people over 21, passed by a margin of 56 percent to 44. In the Warm Springs precinct the vote was 158 in favor and 133 against.

Mobile clinic taking service to the members

The mobile health clinic makes regular stops at the Simnasho, Sacksawum and Sidwalter communities. The clinic also makes a regular day stop at the administration building.

This winter has been short, with precipitation falling as rain, which is usually a good sign because it means that streams will rise faster than predicted.

The winter gillnet fishery ended in March. Based on catches, it looks like there will be a good number of winter-run Chinook available on both the Bonneville and The Dalles harvest guidelines, and a few available on the John Day Pool guidance.

No determinations have been made by the tribes yet on how to use these fish. Additional sturgeon fisheries may be a possibility. The spring chinook is forecast to be 232,500 fish. It is still a pretty small number, but we have the largest total to date since 2003. (Please note this may not mean the run will be bigger than predicted, just started earlier.)

We won’t know how big the run will be until sometime in May. The actual run size will determine what the allowed harvest rate and the allowed catch is for the tribal fishery. Both many and non-many fisheries are managed on the same actual river mouth run now.

ASIST training on suicide prevention

Asist—Applied Suicide Interventions Skills Training— is coming up this month at Kal-Nes-Ti.

The Asist workshop—April 29-30 from 8:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m.—is for caregivers who want to feel more comfortable, confident and competent in helping to prevent the immediate risk of suicide.

For more information on the upcoming workshop, contact Sarah Wolfe at 541-553-5205 ext. 1017, or email sarah.wolfe@orbs.org.

The registration deadline is next week, on April 20. Space is limited to 40 participants. For certification you must attend both days.

The Asist workshop is based on the Confidencialed Tribe of Warm Springs, and the Northwest Portland Area Indian Health Board.

The program: Developed in 1983 and regularly updated to reflect improvements in knowledge and practice, Asist is the world’s leading suicide intervention workshop.

During the workshop, participants learn to intervene and help prevent the immediate risk of suicide.

Over one million people have taken the workshop, and studies have proven that the Asist method helps reduce suicidal feelings for those at risk.

Workshop features: Presentations and guided exercises from two Living Works registered trainers.

- A scientifically proven intervention model.
- Powerful audiovisual learning aids.
- Group discussions.
- Skills practice and development.
- A balance of challenges and safety.

Pageant: raising funds for trip

(Continued from page 1) “I’ve been getting my props ready, working on my baskets, practicing what I’m going to say during my talent presentation and looking into the mirror talking to myself to get rid of my nervousness so I’ll be ready for the interview,” shared Suzanne during a recent interview.

Established in 1984, the Miss Indian World program is the largest and most prestigious cultural pageants for Native American women. Contestants are judged in a number of categories, including public speaking, personal interview, traditional presentation, dancing and an essay.

Suzanne’s mother will be traveling with her as her chauffeur to New Mexico. “I’ve never been to Gathering of Nations, so this will be a new experience for me,” Suzanne said.

As a contestant for Miss Indian World, Suzanne is sellingaffle tickets for $2.50. They can be purchased through April 20 from Fay Anguiano at Natural Resources, Christina Culps at Indian Head Casino and Lawren Slockish at Tribal Court.
